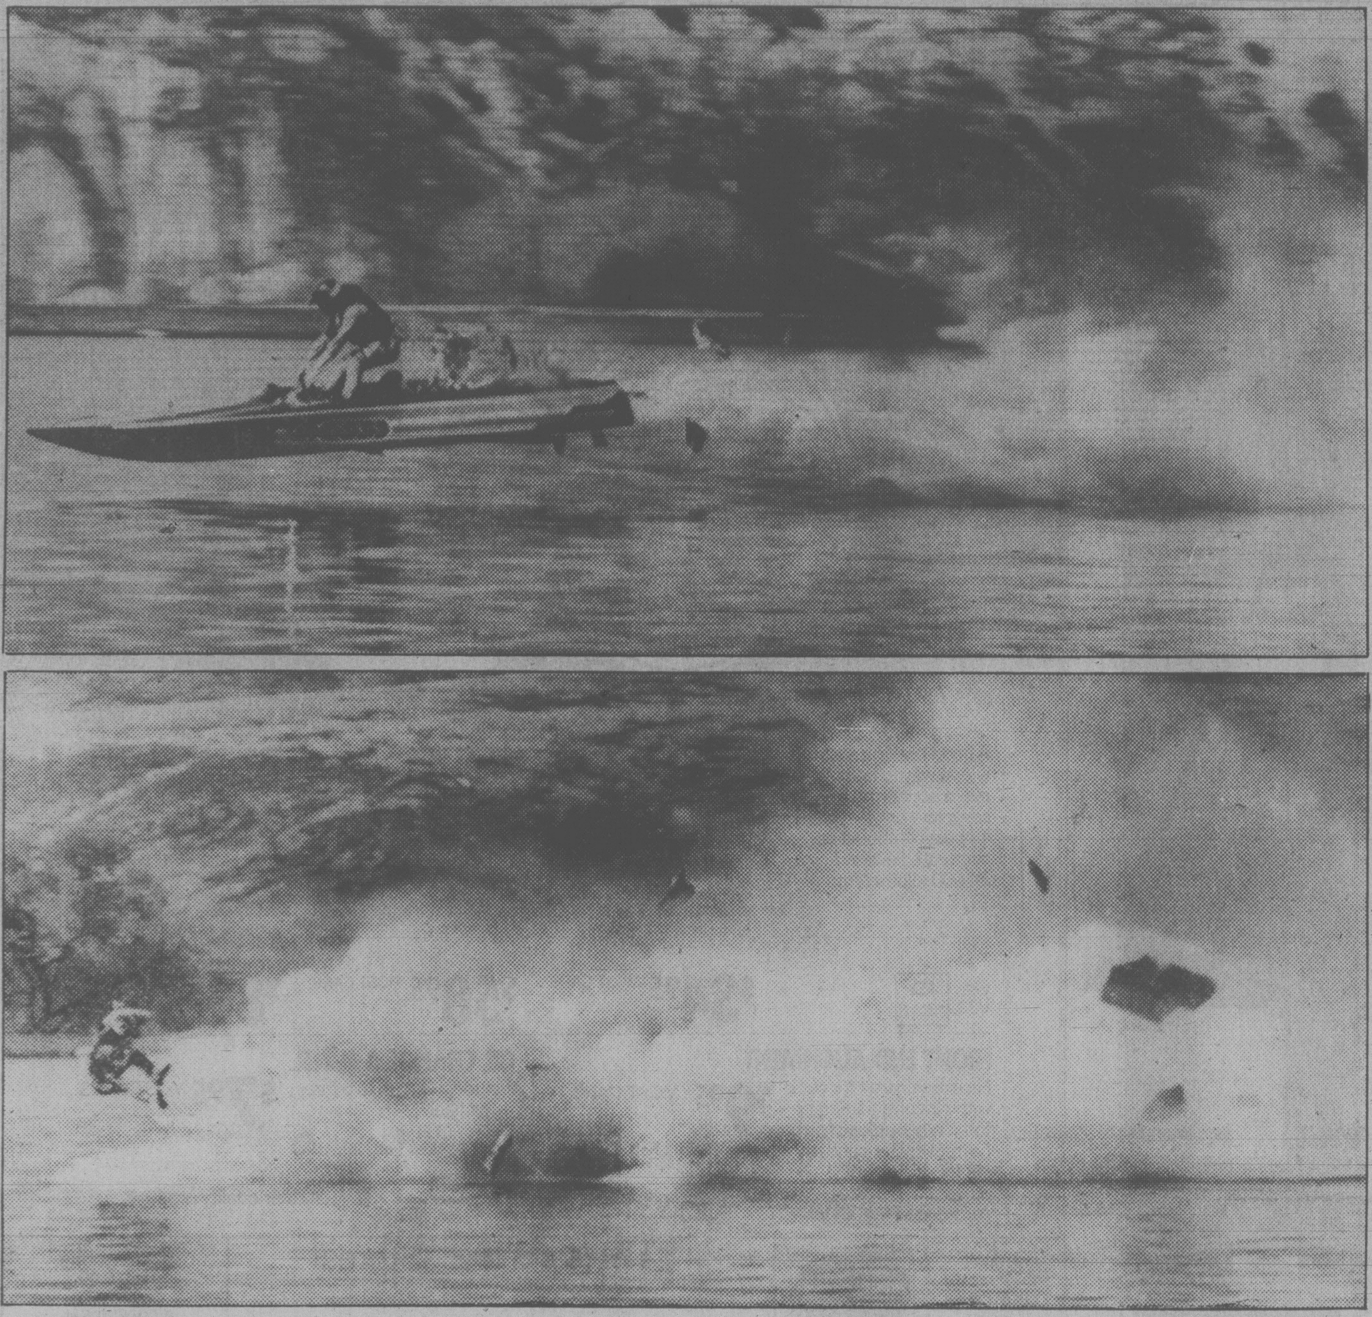
Kabul hit by rioting, looting



SHATTERING EXPERIENCE left speedboat driver Toby Slagle, of Gresham, Ore., with minor injuries Saturday after he lost control of his craft at the National Drag Boat race near Bakersfield, Calif. In upper picture, Slagle is thrown from seat while travelling at more than 200 km/h. In lower shot, the bouncing driver precedes pieces of his boat along surface of Lake Ming.

The Afghan capital of Kabul, already disrupted by four days of anti-Soviet protests, was hit today by a wave of rioting, looting, and gunfire, Radio Kabul said in a rare admission of trouble in the mile-high city.

Until today, Radio Kabul has gone to great lengths to deny any major problem in the Soviet-occupied capital and today's brief broadcast was an indication that anti-Russian demonstrations had reached such a peak that some explanation was needed.

The broadcast, monitored by All-India Radio in Simla, India, said rioting, looting and shooting in the streets of Kabul was the work of insurgents backed by the United States, China and Pakistan.

Earlier, eyewitnesses said shouts of "Allah Akhbar!" (God is great!) punctated by gunfire pierced the night air Sunday.

They said tracer bullets could be seen streaking over rooftops where the city's Moslem residents shouted their cry in defiance of a martial law curfew. It was not known if the bullets were fired by rebels, Afghan troops or their Soviet supporters.

The accounts reported in New Delhi said gunfire could be heard throughout the city late into the night Sunday. A 15-minute fire fight was reported in Jadi-Moiwand district at about 10 p.m. local time.

Diplomatic reports today said Afghan civil servants have joined the anti-Soviet protests, further indicating that the Soviet-installed regime of Babrak Karmal had failed to gain any hold and was falling apart.

Trucks outfitted with loudspeakers moved throughout the capital but failed to quell what the witnesses described as a "continuous and impressive" display in the five-day protest that has left hundreds dead and thousands injured.

The Soviet press admitted for the first time Sunday that there was widespread unrest in Afghanistan and charged it was the work of "foreign spies" working "in accordance with the CIA plans."

The Cuban Prensa Latina news agency said, "more than 220 weapons made in the United States, China, Britain and Pakistan" were captured in Kabul since a general strike began.

Another anti-Soviet demonstration was reported continuing in the eastern provincial capital of Jalalabad.

Well-informed sources in New Delhi said Saturday and Sunday — normally business days in the Moslem nation — were declared holidays by the Soviet-backed Afghan government to conceal the fact that civil servants failed to report to work.

Separatists in west face rocky road

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Two meetings of Westerners dissatisfied with Confederation were held on the weekend, but it looks as if the road to Western independence is going to be rocky.

At the annual meeting of the Western National Association in Vancouver Sunday, only a motion calling for a ban on smoking during the meeting passed without a fight.

It was later learned, however, that some who voted for the smoking ban thought they were voting on something else.

Victoria lawyer Doug Christie, the founder and one-time chairman of the Committee for Western Independence (which later became the Committee for Western Unity, and still later the Western National Association), dueled with the executive throughout the meeting.

When the election of officers was held, Christie found himself back as chairman of the group he founded five years ago.

Christie, who has espoused Western independence for several years, also had to be pleased with the somewhat impromptu Victoria meeting of the Western Independence Party which attracted 60 people Saturday night to the Prince Albert Room in The Empress Hotel.

There was little opposition at the Victoria meeting to suggestions of seeking outright independence.

The only advance notice of the Victoria meeting was a couple of radio announcements Saturday afternoon.

Lewis Stephens, a Victoria welder who attended the Empress meeting, said he was convinced enough to pay $5 for membership in the party.

The question is, what party?

Christie booked the Victoria meeting for the Western Independence Party, but in Vancouver, the 50 people who showed up were looking for the Western National Association meeting.

Reports indicate that at least half of those attending left when hard-line advocates of Western Canadian independence, led by Christie, began arguing with the group's executive.

Those pushing for independence later won out over the remaining moderates and a motion calling for a Western separatist party passed by a narrow margin.

Rentalsman getting tough . . . rent-gougers to court

He was commenting on the officers' raid last week on the Vancouver offices of two companies looking for evidence of violations of the Residential Tenancy Act.

The raid, against Aquilini Construction and Zen Construction, was the first ever authorized by his office, Patterson said.

He said the two companies are under investigation for alleged abuses of rent control legislation.

Tony Dibley, senior rentalsman officer in charge of the investigation, said he seized some confidential documents from company offices.

Personnel involved were co-operative, he said, but as he had search warrants issued by a county court judge, "they really had no option."

Patterson said that since 1977, his office has received numerous complaints from tenants in three buildings involved with the two companies.

"In the past few months, the complaints have been escalating," Patterson said. "We looked at these buildings and found a number of irregularities in the rents. We were finding that rolling back rents was not a sufficient deterrent.

"We have seized all the records and now can investigate whether tenants have complained or not."

Company spokesmen had no comment on the investigation.

The raid is the latest action by Patterson, who is developing a reputation for being tough on landlords who break rent control laws.

Patterson said he wants to ensure landlords do not take advantage of the tight rental situation.

"Our rent control policy is extremely liberal. And with my business background I can understand the need to make a reasonable return.

"But I've been getting mad at people taking advantage of the rental market. Enough is enough. We're going to be more aggressive. When we find people gouging, we'll prosecute."

California shaken by quake

SPRING CREST, Calif. (AP) — A strong earthquake rolled through a wide area of Southern California early today, sparking a fire and causing desert rock slides.

No injuries were reported, but residents from Mexico to Los Angeles and from the desert to the sea — an area with a population of about 10 million — were jolted awake by the quake. There were several aftershocks.

An unoccupied duplex in the desert community of Rancho Mirage was damaged when the quake broke a natural gas line to a water heater and the pilot light set off a blaze, authorities said.

There were no reports of additional damage to several desert levees that broke and caused flooding in last week's string of Pacific storms. Dams in the San Diego area, which overflowed during the same storms last week, also appeared stable.

The quake, which registered 5.1 on the Richter scale, struck at 2:47 a.m. PST and was centred 204 kilometres northeast of San Diego and 24 kilometres southeast of Lake Hemet near Spring Crest.

Greek oil spill threat to coast

ATHENS (UPI) — Oil spilling from a tanker that exploded and sank in historic Bay of Navarino today threatened a scenic stretch of Greek beaches.

But officials planned to avert an ecological disaster by pumping the bulk of the 100,000 tons of crude oil in the hold of the tanker Irene's Serenade, which exploded Saturday while at anchor in the bay and sank in 100 feet of water Sunday.

Undersea pressure threatened to burst the ship's tanks and release millions of gallons into the Ionian Sea, maritime authorities said.

So far, protective booms set up the Coast Guard and Dutch Salvage experts have prevented a 2-mile-long, 500-yard-wide slick from reaching shore. Special boats that sweep oil from the sea were headed to the bay, on Greece's western Peloponnesian coast, some 200 miles southwest of Athens.

Two of the vessel's crew were lost in the explosion and another 28 crewmen and a woman passenger were rescued.

Fully loaded with nearly 30 million gallons of crude oil, the tanker was set afire apparently by sparks from the anchor as it was being lowered outside the port of Pylos.

The stricken tanker lies among the wreckage of the vanquished Turkish fleet, sunk by the combined fleets of Britain, France and Russia at the battle of Navarino.

Walking on air an inflated idea

Los Angeles Times

The term "walking on air" has a whole new meaning today. George Cole, a professional inventor who is credited with the single handle faucet and plastic plumbing pipe, has developed an inflatable shoe designed for people who spend a lot of time on their feet.

The ENERGair shoe features pads on the bottom of the sole that can be inflated with a standard air pump and adjusted to the individual's needs and comfort — a fashion model might require only one pound of pressure, for example, while Orson Welles might need four pounds or more.

The custom-fitted shoes, which sell for $50 to $100 a pair, not only ease foot discomfort but provide a novel excuse for being late to work: "I had a flat shoe."

Kramer, Jazz head Oscar sweeps

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kramer vs. Kramer, a touching story of a child custody battle, and All That Jazz, a musical about a director's brush with death, captured top honors in the 52nd Academy Award nominations today with nine apiece.

Apocalypse Now, a searing account of the Vietnam War, followed with eight nominations.

The modestly-budgeted Breaking Away was nominated in five categories. The China Syndrome, Norma Rae and The Rose followed with four each.

All That Jazz was the surprise of the nominations. The Bob Fosse film had aroused controversy, with some calling it a masterwork and others considering it self-indulgent. Roy Scheider was nominated as best actor for a role that closely paralleled Fosse's life.

Others named for best actor: Dustin Hoffman, Kramer vs. Kramer; Jack Lemmon, The China Syndrome; Al Pacino, And Justice For All; Peter Sellers, Being There.

Two-time winner Jane Fonda was nominated for the fifth time as best actress for The China Syndrome. Also named: Jill Clayburgh, Starting Over; Sally Field, Norma Rae; Marsha Mason, Chapter Two; Bette Midler, The Rose.

Another two-time winner, Melvyn Douglas, was among the nominees for supporting actor; he was named for Being There. Others for supporting actor: Robert Duvall, Apocalypse Now; Fredric Forrest, The Rose; Justin Henry, Kramer vs. Kramer; Mickey Rooney, The Black Stallion.

Meryl Streep was considered by many critics to have played a starring role in Kramer vs. Kramer but she was nominated for best supporting actress. Others in the category: Jane Alexander, Kramer vs. Kramer; Barbara Barrie, Breaking Away; Candice Bergen, Starting Over; Mariel Hemingway, Manhattan.

The preliminary skirmishing, which saw studios spend hundreds of thousands for trade paper advertisements and other attention-getters, now is over. Competition will be focused on five nominees in each category.

Who does the voting? Nominations are made by each category — actors vote for acting achievements, writers for writing, etc.

Johnny Carson will be the host at the awards ceremony at the Los Angeles Music Centre April 14. ABC will telecast the ceremonies starting an hour earlier

Oil prices go up 10-16 cents: Grit

CALGARY (CP) — Jim Higgins, the Liberal party's Calgary region vice-president, said the new government intends to hold annual oil price increases for consumers down to $3.50 or $4.25 a barrel. This would result in annual increases of between 10½ and 16 cents a gallon for gasoline.

Higgins, one of three Alberta representatives on the Liberals' national policy committee, said the increases would provide the incentive for Canada's energy industry to produce enough oil to make the country self-sufficient by 1985.

He said that while the final oil price is still subject to federal-provincial negotiations, the amount given for so-called new oil will be much higher — as much as $27 a barrel — than industry generally expects.

The party did not give specific pricing figures during the Feb. 18 election campaign but offered what it called a replacement cost for oil from new sources.

"This replacement cost is whatever it costs to get companies to go and look for oil. We intend to reward endeavor."

New oil will include frontier oil, heavy oil, production from oil sands plants and enhanced recovery techniques and probably new discoveries of conventional oil.

Higgins said the consumer will pay a blended price, combining all the different old and new oil prices. Because most of Canada's requirements will continue to be met by old oil, the over-all price increase should not be too great — $3.50 to $3.75 a barrel this year and $4 to $4.25 thereafter.

The increases probably will include a small import tax. The treasury last year paid $1.8 billion to subsidize oil imports and the new tax will help meet the drain on federal coffers.

Mt. Finlayson climber falls

Rock climber Scott Franklin Morden, 23, was plucked by a rescue team from the west face of Mt. Finlayson Saturday night.

Morden, 349 Cook, fell about 4 p.m. during a hike, broke an ankle and rolled about 30 feet down the cliff until stopped by a tree.

A party of five other young hikers were nearby and some went to Morden's aid while others went for police who called Pearson College mountain rescuers and a team from Langford volunteer fire department.

Brinks guard gunned down

MONTREAL (CP) — Police are searching for two men who shot and killed a Brinks guard in a downtown shopping centre today as he and his partner returned from a cash pickup at a restaurant.

The ambush took place at about 9:45 a.m. in a corridor of the fashionable Place Bonaventure. Police said between $15,000 and $18,000 was stolen.

Witnesses said both bandits wore rubber Hallowe'en masks. Armed with a shotgun, one fired without warning on the guard who carried a sack containing the weekend receipts of the restaurant, eyewitnesses said in interviews with radio station CJAD.

The guard died in hospital of a chest wound about an hour after the shooting and police refused to reveal his identity. The second guard, who had preceded his partner with his pistol drawn, was not wounded.

Police said they had no leads.

It was the second time in less than a year that an armored car guard had been slain in Montreal while making money transfers.

Last August, a guard employed by Alliance Securite Blindee was shot dead and his partner wounded when they were ambushed outside the employees' credit union at Canadian Broadcasting Corp. headquarters here.

The take in that robbery was $330,000 and no arrests have been made.

A Brinks guard in Hull, Que., was killed by a shotgun blast last December during a $350,000 robbery at a bank.

Bennett explains why he didn't vote

Premier Bill Bennett, just back from his Hawaiian vacation, says he didn't vote in the Feb. 18 federal election because it was more important that he rest up for the legislative session opening Friday.

"I wrestled very carefully with it," he told reporters today.

"If my performance as premier is to be the best I can deliver, I must be rested. I continued to work on the throne speech and preparation for the session."

Bennett said he resented news reports that he didn't cast a ballot because it would be pointless. He said he didn't vote in the advance poll because he couldn't make it back to Kelowna. He was stuck in Victoria on government business.

He said his decision to go on vacation instead of staying home to vote was a major one for him.

"I have not only voted in but I have acted in every federal and provincial election since I was of voting age."

Bennett said he expects good relations with the new Liberal government in Ottawa and B.C. will continue to be a strong voice for the West.

He said he had no preference for either Clark or Trudeau but was happy the NDP did not get enough seats to hold a balance of power.

"I'm glad we're not faced with a government held to ransom by third, fourth and fifth parties," he said.

"It is always better to have a majority government, provincially or federally."

Bennett had little to say about the current resurgence of talk about western separatism, except that he's against it, and made no comment on proportional representation.

He said his government will continue to take a strong hand in bringing B.C. into national affairs and "pressing a logical, researched case for constitutional reform that will enhance our ability to do so."

But Bennett said B.C. will keep fighting for it.

" We'll continue to press our case with the government of Canada. But you don't get all your victories in a single day or a single year or even a single term of government. But if you'r right, you'll eventually win."

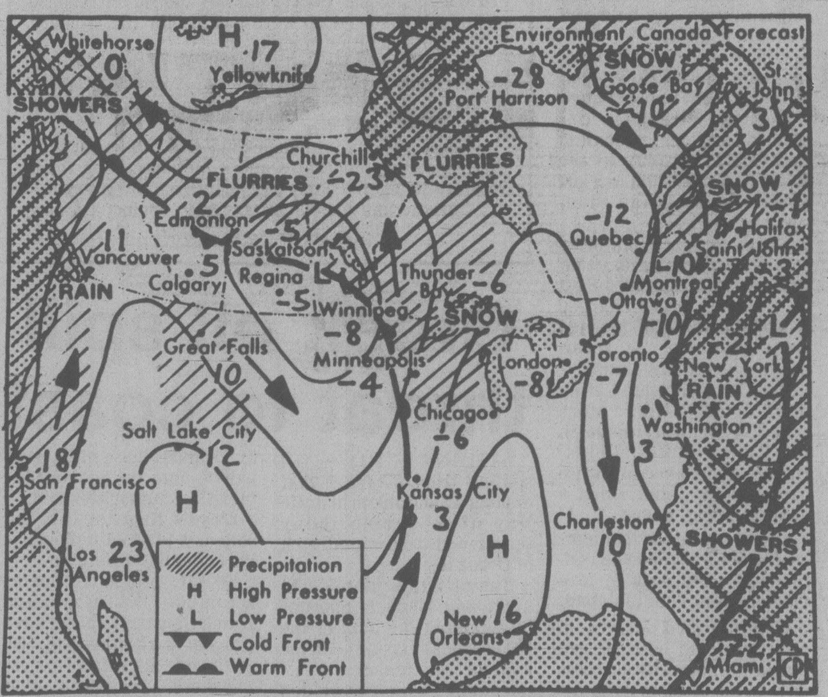

Map valid until noon Tuesday

Some rain was falling over the coast this morning while a few snowflurries occurred in the interior. The rain over the southern coast will gradually become more frequent tonight and spread slowly north on Tuesday. Some warming is expected in interior regions to allow some rain mixed with snow to fall on Tuesday over southern sections of the province.

WCB attacks 'unfounded'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial Workers' Compensation Board is a first-class system and most complaints against it are unfounded, Labor Minister Jack Heindrich said Sunday.

Heindrich said moves are under way to streamline the board's claim review process. He conceded a large backlog of cases being reviewed is a major problem, but said the board has a big job and is doing it well.

The board has been under fire from a variety of groups and individuals. In the most recent attack, unions and the B.C. Medical Association have refused to support a policy of limited compensation based on the length of time the board believes a worker needs to recuperate from an injury.

The B.C. Federation of Labor and some non-affiliates, including the Canadian Association of Industrial, Mechanical and Allied Workers, have demanded the resignation of board chairman Dr. Adam Little and commissioner Sam Brown. The unions are also seeking a replacement for former vice-chairman Jerry Paradis.

The latest complaint against the WCB has come from unions and the B.C. Medical Association who oppose a ruling that hernia sufferers receive benefits for only a stipulated time.

Board officials, however, say its claim system is set up to ensure that claim processors are aware of the worker who is not recovering quickly enough "so that we can do everything possible to help him recover."

Claimants' files and data collected from a province-wide survey were studied to establish an estimated recovery time required for a hernia operation.

Use of the data to judge a worker's ability to recuperate is revealed in an internal board memo which refers to a four-week period for expected recovery from such an operation.

"(Board Chairman Dr. Adam) Little has indicated that this time frame, in his opinion is adequate," the memo says. "At this time we will consider paying wage loss beyond four weeks up to six but it is felt that in most instances wage loss not go beyond that time frame."

Union officials have complained that the data could be used to stop payments prematurely, forcing workers back to the job before they are fully recovered.

The B.C. Medical Association has refused to endorse the limited-payment program.

'Oldest' actress dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alicia Ammon, believed to be Canada's oldest active actress, died Saturday of cancer. She was 94.

Mrs. Ammon, who began her acting career in 1898 with a touring juvenile vaudeville troupe in Britain, most recently played Nellie, one of four senior citizens in the CBC comedy series, Nellie, Daniel, Emma and Ben.

The London-born actress immigrated to Canada in 1920 with her husband and three children, settling in the Okanagan Valley in south-central British Columbia.

She later spent five years in the western United States, organizing variety companies in Oregon and California.

She returned to Canada in 1929 and during the 1930s and 1940s, performed in radio comedy and local repertory theatre.

Mrs. Ammon performed in local television shows in B.C. and later had small parts in several films, including The Trap, That Cold Day in The Park and Five Easy Pieces.

She is survived by two sons and three daughters.

Stoves a hazard

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Local fire authorities are urging wood-burning stove manufacturers to warn customers that their products pose a fire hazard after a coroner blamed three recent deaths on a poorly-installed Franklin stove.

Regional coroner Dianne Messier said in a report that Tomisho Suto, 51, had installed his stove within a few inches of a wooden wall, which caught fire and killed him and two of his five children.

Hiker killed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Michael Gladwin Rempel, 21, of Burnaby, died at the weekend in a hiking accident on Mount Seymour.

RCMP said Rempel was hiking on the mountain's eastern peaks when he missed his footing and fell over a 300-metre cliff.

Changes urged

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — An organization representing about 1,500 seasonal farm workers in the Fraser Valley wants sweeping changes in labor laws to protect the estimated 11,000 farm workers throughout B.C. The Farm Workers Organizing Committee, established last spring, has presented a detailed legal brief to Colin Kay, manager of the provincial labor standards branch. Farm and domestic workers now are excluded from labor standards legislation.

CHECK THESE NEW BENEFITS AND OPTIONS FOR AUTOPLAN '80

It's getting close to renewal time for Autoplan insurance. The deadline is February 29th for the majority of B.C. motorists.
Although rates are up by 10% because of increased costs, individual premiums may increase or decrease because of changes in ICBC's rating structure and the introduction of Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
Your Autoplan insurance for 1980 also features some new built-in benefits for everyone and some new options you should consider for your personal protection when you renew.

CHANGED COVERAGES
1. INCREASED LIABILITY COVERAGE
Like everything else, the cost of settling bodily injury claims continues to rise. So, for your greater protection, we have increased the compulsory minimum for Third Party Liability insurance to $100,000 from $75,000. For the nine out of 10 motorists who carry more than just the minimum coverage, there will be no extra cost.

2. INCREASED NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
Recognizing the higher cost of living, a number of no-fault accident benefits are being increased.
- Weekly benefits increased to $100 from $75.
- Dependent benefits increased to $25 from $15 a week.
- Funeral expenses increased to $1,000 from $750.

3. SAFE DRIVING VEHICLE DISCOUNT CHANGE
A major change in the discount program came into effect last September. It waives the earlier requirement that drivers in British Columbia had to be insured under Autoplan for six months before they became eligible for a Safe Driving Vehicle Discount. Now, the discount can be applied without the waiting period and it is based on the owner's previous claim record. A one-year claim-free record earns a 15% discount; two years earns 25%; three qualifies for 32½%. This change principally benefits people buying an additional vehicle and new residents to the province.

NEW COVERAGE
INVERSE LIABILITY COVERAGE
In some U.S. states and Canadian provinces, your right to recover costs for damage to your vehicle through the courts is legally prohibited when a resident of that state or province is at fault in the accident. This new Autoplan feature, which is included as part of your basic coverage at no extra cost to you, provides for payment of your collision damage cost to the extent that you are not at fault for the accident.

NEW OPTIONS
1. UNDER INSURED MOTORIST COVERAGE
For an additional premium you can now extend your protection to cover accidents where the insurance of the driver at fault is not sufficient to cover claims for bodily injury and death. If you are the victim of an accident, and you carry this option you are protected to the limit of your own Third Party Liability coverage.

2. SUPPLEMENTARY NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
If you feel the current disability and death benefits offered under the No-Fault Accident Benefits schedule are insufficient to cover your needs, this option allows you to buy a higher level of benefits for an additional premium.

AND THE F.A.I.R. PROGRAM STARTS
Autoplan '80 will also introduce Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
The premium you pay may be affected by one or more of these changes:
- Sex and marital status will be removed as rating factors. This will mean a decrease of about 30% in the average premium paid by male vehicle owners or principal operators under 30 years of age.
- The first step will be taken towards removing geographical location as a rating factor. As a result, premiums will increase in some territories and decrease in others.
- The Safe Driving Incentive Grant will be discontinued because the young, single, male drivers who received this grant will benefit more from the new lower premiums
- An additional premium is no longer required for an occasional operator under 25 years of age.

If you have any questions, consult your independent Autoplan agent, or your Motor Licence Office. Be sure to pick up your Motorist Kit when renewing your insurance. It contains a handy pocket to protect your insurance and registration documents, useful information if you have an accident and details of Autoplan insurance for 1980.

Renew early and take time to discuss the new coverages and your requirements with your agent.

Less drastic options

Esquimalt Ald. Larry Mann has pointed out a continuing problem of Greater Victoria municipal government: the rivalry and lack of co-ordination among the various municipalities, the regional district and the unorganized territories.

In his recent paper proposing metropolitan government, he notes that duplication exists in nearly every phase of operations of the four core municipalities, and that quasi-regional bodies like the Intermunicipal Committee spend hours making recommendations that should really come from a single local government.

The immediate opposition of other municipal officials to Mann's paper shows that Greater Victoria is not yet ready to implement his solutions and move immediately to what is essentially an amalgamation of Esquimalt, Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria.

Oak Bay remains entirely happy in its enclave behind the Tweed Curtain and is simply disinterested in the whole affair. Esquimalt is concerned that it might end up having to pay for servicing of lesser-developed areas, like Saanich. Saanich wants to maintain control of its own development destiny, and wants only the part of amalgamation that would see Victoria give up some downtown tax receipts in a revenue-sharing scheme. Victoria wouldn't mind amalgamation — if it didn't have to give up any of its downtown revenue.

With such a mixed bag of negative attitudes, anyone trying to put together an amalgamation package would have a near impossible task.

Yet Mann's essential premise is valid: the current system is unreasonable, clumsy and unfair.

Perhaps some measures less drastic than full amalgamation should be adopted to begin improving the situation. One might be the unification of some services, such as police and fire protection, on a trial basis. After a year or two, an assessment could be made of the operation's efficiency and benefits.

A major study of amalgamation and revenue-sharing could also be undertaken. The study could be made by independent consultants and could include a variety of options for a new system.

There are many advantages to amalgamation, and some disadvantages as well. What is lacking among some of our politicians is a willingness to examine the alternatives impartially.

Inflationary trends

The economic argument remains that Canada must move closer to world prices for petroleum products reasonably quickly to avoid being caught in a worse energy crisis.

Yet as the new Trudeau government begins to explore methods of reaching that goal, it must keep in mind the debilitating effects of too sharp a price increase on the over-all economy, particularly the rate of inflation.

For an example of how things go wrong, one need look no farther than to our neighbor to the south.

The U.S. government announced last week that consumer prices jumped 1.4 per cent in January alone, fuelled mainly by rising petroleum prices. If prices were to continue to rise at that rate throughout the year, the annual inflation rate would be 18.2 per cent.

A major contributor to the over-all increase was the transportation sector, according to U.S. statisticians. They said the prices in the sector jumped 3.1 per cent, almost entirely because of a 7.4 per cent increase in the price of gasoline.

These frightening statistics make one wonder just what would have happened to Canada's inflation rate, if Joe Clark's budget, with its 18-cent gasoline tax, had been implemented. The tax would have raised the price of gasoline by about 15 per cent in a single month.

If all other factors were similar to those in the U.S. — and the American statistics give no indication of any significant differences — the result would have been a rise in the Canadian inflation rate of about 2.8 per cent for the month.

The $4-per-barrel oil price increase to follow the new tax would have probably meant the inflation rate would have continued to rise astronomically in 1980.

The increased energy costs to industry would have meant higher prices for goods as well. Workers would probably have started to demand equally high wage settlements to cover their personal increased costs, and the wage-price inflation spiral of 1974-75 would have begun all over again.

The need for higher oil prices remains. But Trudeau and his new cabinet should look carefully at the need to cushion the economy from the worst inflationary effects of the new prices as they begin to draw up a plan for energy pricing for the 1980s.

BRUCE HUTCHISON

After this week's Liberal triumph and Conservative post mortem, Canadians should realize that they have given Pierre Trudeau perhaps the most important mandate, and the hardest task, since the nation's birth. For during his last years of power he must begin to solve, or fail to solve, the paramount problem of Quebec's future, inside or outside Canada. Not only is the existence of the national state at hazard but its inflated and warped economy needs a drastic overhaul which previous Liberal governments dared not attempt.

No agenda of comparable magnitude and complexity has ever faced a prime minister in earlier, simpler times. Nobody except a rancorous partisan, or a certified lunatic, would want Mr. Trudeau to fail. However we voted as individuals, all of us, even the voteless children, are passengers on a leaky craft, far from shore, with his hand on the tiller.

What are his prospects as he surveys them now in the calm preceding the next storm?

No national party

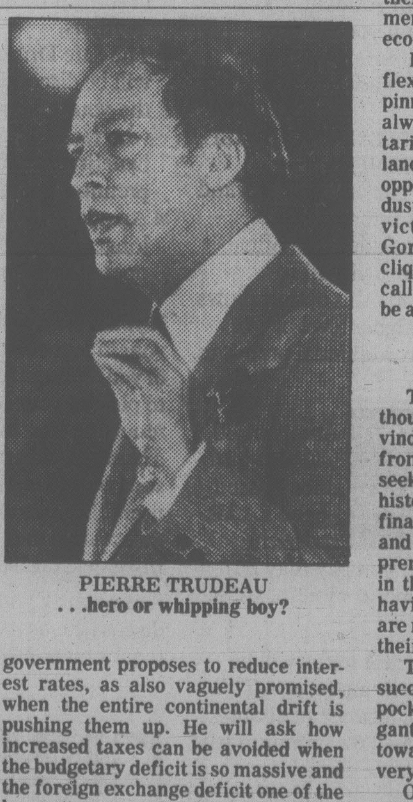
He knows, in the first place, that the nation did not vote anything like full confidence in him or his party. It voted no-confidence in Joe Clark. From the vast Liberal gap in the West Mr. Trudeau knows, too, that there is no truly national party today when Conservatism has been excluded from French Canada. But, as he said in the campaign, his successor, a few years hence, may be able to recreate such a party.

Meanwhile he must govern with a clumsy apparatus dominated by Ontario and Quebec, and always distrusted beyond the Great Lakes.

If the nation has thus given him a reluctant and lop-sided mandate, events have given him little time to enforce it. The schedule is much too tight — a spring budget of unknown contents, a quick and very dubious deal with Alberta on oil prices, a Quebec referendum temporarily masking Mr. Trudeau's obvious constitutional disagreement with Claude Ryan, and behind it all the dangerous climate of the world.

Why any man would undertake this task, especially a man who announced his retirement last autumn and sought the well-earned reward of private life, is the abiding mystery of politics in all ages and places. But that strange compound of duty and ego provides us with leaders and then the chance to tear them down. Not long from now the wrecking crews will go to work again.

Mr. Clark, to his credit, has wished Mr. Trudeau success, but he is entitled to demand, among other things, that the new government's first budget make good, at least, the promise to reduce a budgetary deficit accumulated in 11 years of thriftless Liberal administration. He will ask how the government proposes to reduce interest rates, as also vaguely promised, when the entire continental drift is pushing them up. He will ask how increased taxes can be avoided when the budgetary deficit is so massive and the foreign exchange deficit one of the largest per capita in the Western world.



PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . .hero or whipping boy?

These are legitimate questions but concerning them only one thing can be said for sure — that nothing will turn out according to plan, that most of the election rhetoric, on all sides of politics, is now irrelevant, that the government must operate within the context of actual conditions, internal and external, none of them yet foreseeable.

As a uniquely fortunate nation sets out on its latest voyage can the passengers discern the swing of the tiller? Yes, in a general direction, the veteran navigator's aim, or hope, is already clear, and it is leftward.

Mr. Trudeau left no doubt on that score when he promixed to expand Petro-Canada, to establish a Japanese-style state trading agency in promoting exports, and to increase social benefits for those who most need them. The state, under his management, will play a larger part in the economy and in society as a whole.

His plans — still embryonic and flexible — are tinctured, if not underpinned, by the economic nationalism always latent, if not dominant, in the tariff-protected manufacturing heartland of Ontario and Quebec but always opposed by the exporting resource industries of the anti-Liberal West. In the victorious governing party Walter Gordon, with his powerful Toronto clique, are riding high again and so-called Western alienation is likely to be aggravated.

Tests ahead

Thus Mr. Trudeau, a brilliant though lonely strategist, has won a vindication at the polls but it is far from the vindication that he naturally seeks as a towering figure in Canadian history. His real test, and history's final verdict, are still ahead of him — and ahead of the people. For the supreme question raised and unanswered in the election is whether the people, having rejected Mr. Clark's methods, are ready to do anything decisive about their problems.

The simple fact is that no policy can succeed unless it is tough, hits our pocket books, moderates our extravagant lifeways, and tests our attitude toward Quebec in a state dual by its very nature.

Or, as one of Canada's most famous politicians, now retired, has put it, the man leading the new government may be a hero in the short run but certainly will be a public whipping boy if he does the required job in the long. Such is the personal future chosen by the unsinkable Mr. Trudeau whom the nation has never understood.

Crowd teaser

The Victoria Times' post-election headline (Feb. 19), "Canada: One nation divided" must have seemed ideal to whomever dreams up such terse crowd-teasers.

I think such half-truth ideas only serve to stir up emotions, either of distress or glee, which are better left dormant. Instead of playing up and exaggerating a weakness, I would think it ought to be played down and minimized, especially right now, when a fresh government needs encouragement to serve all Canadians, and when all Canadians, especially Westerners, need encouragement to calmly and courteously inform Ottawa what we would like to see done which would be of benefit to the Confederation as a whole.

I would like to see three economic measures adopted at once:

1. Development, on an integrated, long-term basis, of all our acceptable energy sources, i.e. the sun, wind and water power, the tar sands, Arctic and Atlantic petroleum (but not nuclear power).

2. The above development financed by a reasonable but uncompromising surcharge on the excessive profits many companies have made at the cost of unacceptable inflated prices and/or the under-development of Canadian resources.

3. Immediate start on a natural gas pipeline to Quebec and the Maritimes, and an oil pipeline to begin so that it will be completed in time to coincide with the availablility of a flow from our own sources large enough to meet the needs in that region at that time.

Concentrating on such practical matters as these would, I believe, unite Canada behind our new federal government and should do more to keep the nation healthy and strong (and together) in this decade than any alternative priorities would or could. — Robin Terry, 208-1180 Colville Road.

Under the UN flag

The U.S.-initiated movement to boycott the 1980 Moscow Summer Olympic Games has seemed to arise from American frustration at their attempts to bring about a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan and from a refusal to give tacit approval to the use of the Olympic Games for propaganda purposes by the USSR. The proposed boycott, especially without wide international support could easily backfire and be translated into a "sour grapes" issue in Soviet propaganda. It creates a real disservice to the many athletes who have trained long and hard for the honor of representing their country.

The inconsistencies arising from this confused crisis can be seen in the experience of the Victoria gymnast Philip Delesalle who after his outstanding performance in the December '79 World Championships has as great a chance as any Canadian athlete to win a medal at the Summer Games.

It is my understanding that Philip is but one of seven Victoria potential Olympic competitors and one of three that has so far qualified. How can we expect our top athletes to continue to train effectively in this present atmosphere of uncertainty?

If politics is to be a part of the Olympics, perhaps Canada should assume a leadership position in seeing that it be in the interests of international peace and not nationalistic self-interest.

Instead of a follow-the-leader approach of unqualified support of the U.S. position or of awaiting other country's declarations of support for the proposed boycott, Canada could show some initiative.

A more effective protest of Soviet expansionism would be for all nations to compete but for individual athletes or member nations of the I.O.C. who wish to protest to join in opening celebrations and awards ceremonies under a flag representing the United Nations unless the Soviets have withdrawn from Afghanistan.

The advantages of such a plan might include:

1. The participating athletes would not be sacrificed to misguided appeals to patriotism.

2. It would strengthen support for the UN, an organization often criticized for its impotence.

3. It would be more difficult for the USSR to distort the meaning of such a protest in counter-propaganda.

4. It might offer a face-saving opportunity to both the USSR and the U.S. to decrease escalating intimidation and mistrust.

Your paper recently canvssed public support for the proposed boycott. I would ask that you give consideration now to editorial support for seeking and promoting more constructive protest actions, such as the idea of participation under the U.N. flag. — Ian A. Gillespie, M.D., 1780 Fort Street.

Inconsistent voting

The defeat of the Conservative Party signified two things: first, that the psyche of Canadians is like other psyches prone to irrational bursts of inconsistent emotion (we punished the arrogance of Trudeau; in his abdication and in the anti-classic style of Mr. Clark we could again contemplate the ascension of the chastened Pierre); secondly, that somewhere deep within the consiciousness of most of us we acknowledge the instinctual preference for an individual who, however much derided on his fiscal policies, his undeclared proposals to solve 'the problems', nevertheless has resonated an impression that he is indeed the archetypal statesman, a truly formidable human being, as brilliant as he is flawed.

We have to recognize that Mr. Clark never completely found the source of an authentic and graceful inner confidence, that despite the remarkable maturity that took place in his performance since his egregious Jerusalem promise he has not lived deeply enough, has not qualified to be chosen as world leader.

Apart from this we can even suggest that in spite of proceeding under the assumption that we determine our own destiny, there is something which seems to be intolerant of the kind of over-reaction that dismissed Trudeau in May as an enemy of Canada's evoluton, as a leader who was responsible for all of our national problems. That something is the order and intention that has conceived of this miraculous drama and the necessary pressure to be exerted on the collective ego of Canadians to make certain that justice would be done, that the prime minister of 11 years was the more intelligent and imaginative force to lead us into the 1980s.

In the meantime the outcome creates some dissonance for the media, an outcome that does not entirely conform to the categories of analysis conventionally used to explain such things. This dissonant result may begin to expand the boundaries of our secular, politicalized consciousness. — Robin W. Carlsen, 1225 Sunnyside Avenue.

Re-plant gorse

Gradually the natural beauty of Victoria is being destroyed. Last week a work crew from the City of Victoria arrived on the Dallas Road waterfront at the foot of Cook Street, whereupon they set about to axe, prune, cut down and remove gorse that for years has grown in thickets in this area in a natural state, being much admired and photographed in the past. The undergrowth has been removed spoiling the appearance it once had and, by so doing, removing cover for the very few birds which remain in that vicinity. The gorse has also been completely removed from one of the pathways leading to the beach which provided a barrier to people who will now erode the bank by climbing up or down the bank.

To compensate, I would suggest that new seedlings of gorse be planted to restore the area, also to plant seedlings along the banks of the waterfront in the hope that someday it will grow to bring beauty to those generations to follow.

Disturbed by people and dogs, the pheasants have all but disappeared from Beacon Hill Park, the quail are now few in numbers and the meadow larks which once graced the southern slopes with their lovely song can no longer be heard, never to return.

Finally, I think the time has come for an elective parks board in the City of Victoria. — E. E. Protheroe, 250 Douglas Street.

Drivers needed

There are many people in our community who are providing a volunteer service. The group I would like to toss a bouquet at this time are the volunteer drivers for the Cancer Society.

Through all types of weather they drive patients to and from their homes for treatment at the Cancer Clinic. This service they are providing means a great deal to the patient and their families as well as the staff of the Cancer Clinic. Their co-operation and willingness to provide transportation makes my work much simplier.

We are still in need of more drivers, for those who have a car, time on their hands and wish to serve please contact the Cancer Society at 382-3414. — E. K. Moore, Volunteer Driver Co-ordinator, Victoria Division, Canadian Cancer Society.

Victoria Landmarks

"For a quarter of a century, the wood-burning steam "locies" of the "Cordwood Limited" hauled trains throughout the Saanich Peninsula. From 1894-1919, the Victoria and Sidney Railway was vital to the growth of sawmilling and agricultural communities in Saanich. Today much of the line's abandoned grade has disappeared into an expanding highway system." So states the Stop-of-Interest sign familiar to many living near Sidney.

A reminder of this railway — V and S for short — is Veyaness Road in Central Saanich.

Among its regular stops were Hillside, Royal Oak, Elk Lake, Keating and Saanichton.

In 1912, the V and S had competition as the British Columbia Electric Railway began an interurban line west of the V and S route and ending at what is now Deep Cove.

Then the Canadian Northern Railway ran up the east side of the peninsula to Bazan Bay, and there cut across to Patricia Bay.

In 1914, a motor carrier started operating between Victoria and Sidney.

The V and S travellers would have been astonished by our present Pat Bay Highway, traffic lights, airports, and holiday overloads at the Swartz Bay Ferry Terminal.

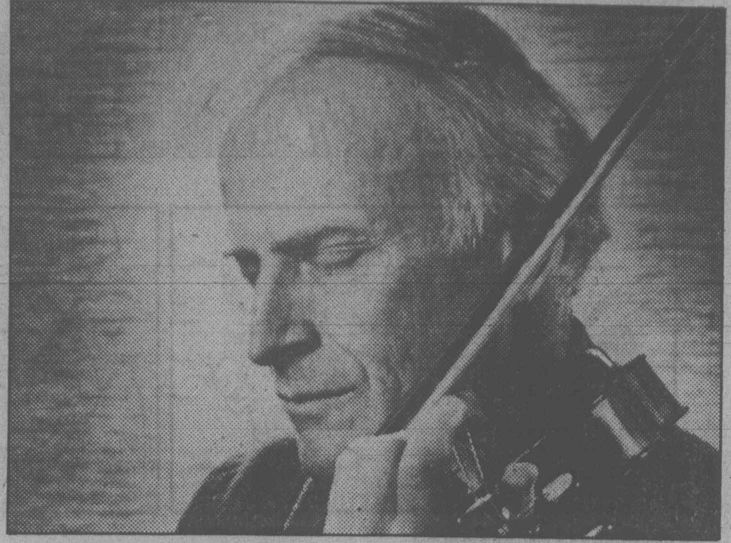
Music's calming power

By CHRISTOPHER DAFOE
The Sun



YEHUDI MENUHIN . . . help for the distressed

Yehudi Menuhin's recent performance before a group of convicts — some of them suffering from mental disorders — at the Regional Psychiatric Centre at Abbotsford was a typical act of kindness by a gifted humanitarian. Menuhin's visit to the afflicted also had a practical aspect. The great violinist subscribes to the view that music — especially classical music — can have a beneficial effect upon those suffering from mental illness or emotional distress.

To some, this may seem like a newfangled, revolutionary idea, but the idea of using music to calm, refresh and balance those suffering from mental distress is, in fact, an ancient one.

In our own time the custom has fallen into disuse as medical men have rushed to embrace and occasionally abandon such methods of treatment as the electric shock, hydro therapy, mind-altering drugs, tranquillity potions, the prefrontal and transorbital lobotomy and various other ju-ju methods that have appeared to enchant and distract the scientific mind.

It is a fact, however, that some older, supposedly outdated healing methods are often worth a second look and, thanks to the efforts of Yehudi Menuhin and others, the use of music in the treatment of mental disorder seems to be making a modest comeback.

Music, of course, does not cure mental disorder and I don't think anyone has ever made such a grandiose claim. It does, however, tend to modify the symptoms of certain forms of mental illness — often violent mental illness — and this special power that music has, this ability to calm and soothe, has been recognized throughout history.

Everyone, of course, is familiar with the old saying "Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast (or "beast", if you prefer that version). Whoever first said it was simply giving voice to a widely held and long established view.

In the ancient world, many nations provided groups of musicians for the aid and comfort of the mentally deranged. Heroditus, I believe, had words of commendation for the degree of civilization displayed by nations who adopted this method rather than the frequently used alternative of driving out demons with the lash.

When Saul was troubled in mind, David played to him on the harp and the effect was always a calming one.

The Emperor Nero, never an easy man to get along with and quite possibly a certifiable lunatic, had a passion for music and is said to have been easier to deal with when he was playing or listening to the lyre. It is usually held against him that he "fiddled while Rome burned," but from one point of view his use of music at this time is perfectly understandable. A city in flames is always a distressing sight, but music probably put Nero into a frame of mind in which he could cope with the situation.

The Elizabethans were well aware of the potency of music as an agent against mental distress. Shakespeare makes frequent reference to the power of music in this regard. "Is it not strange that sheep's guts should hale souls out of men's bodies?" asks a character in Much Ado About Nothing. The question was purely rhetorical. Everybody in Shakespeare's audience knew that music has always had this special power. In the Merchant of Venice, Lorenzo, speaking to Shylock's daughter Jessica of "the sweet power of music," talks about the ability of music to calm a savage nature. "The man that hath no music in himself," he continues, "nor is not moved with concord of sweet sounds, is fit for treasons, strategems, and spoils; The motions of his spirit are dull as night, and his affections dark as Erebus."

The use of music to "calm the savage breast" continued well into our own era. It will be recalled that Sir Edward Elgar, in his early days, served as director of music at the lunatic asylum at Worcester, composing music for the orchestra of staff members that played for the inmates.

Of arms and the boy

By DICK DABNEY

The other day I was routinely reading along about Kurt Waldheim's visit to Tehran when I came across the following paragraph:

"At one point, a 3-year-old boy, whose arms were cut off at the shoulder by SAVAK agents as a reprisal against his leftist father, was passed into the arms of the envoy. The youngster, clad in camouflage overalls, burst out crying, and Waldheim, smiling wanly, handed him back to his mother."

It was all so parenthetical, thrown almost casually into the ongoing surge of the piece, whose focus seemed to be what proposals Waldheim might make when he got back to the United Nations.

In fact, it would be hard to tell you exactly what the rest of that piece did have to say, so riveted was I by the picture of that armless boy, and that worse picture of what it had been like when SAVAK did the deed.

Later that weekend, I tried to listen to the talk and interview shows about conditions in Iran and Afghanistan. The commentators, rational men, were talking about worthwhile abstractions like oil flow, balance of power and the future of SALT. But if they had read the paragraph about the boy having had his arms sawed off by SAVAK, they gave no sign. Probably they had because they were industrious, conscientious men, and had possibly regretted it when they decided that the tyke — one of many maimed by the shah's police — was small change in the affairs of the world.

But it was hard to pay attention to them, either, I kept seeing in my mind's eye the sterile, neon-lit operating room and the stricken faces of the parents as they were held fast by SAVAK agents and made to watch the amputations. The father's crime, by the way, had been listening to a forbidden cassette tape. And I saw, through their eyes, the frightened face of the youngster they could not help, saw the gouting of real blood, heard through their ears the wet rasp of saw blade in bone. All this while the commentators on TV were talking of such thins as pressures within the Security Council, alternative uses for embargoed grain and possible side effects on the world money market.

And I felt like a fool, unqualified to comment on world affairs, because all those abstractions seemed for the moment to be nonsense; and I was picturing, instead, the SAVAK surgeon going home to listen to a Jimmy Carter speech about how necessary it was for two religious nations like Iran and the United States to stand together against the forces of atheism; and I could see him nodding agreement and feel him being warmed by that wonderful smile.

Fool or not, however, I was murderously angry about having been obliged to pay for the saw that had rasped on those young bones, to say nothing of the propaganda that had justified the deed, and I could not help wondering just what it took to be permitted to have a say in what my country did and ought to be doing. And rebellious thoughts like these have run rife into the succeeding days.

I have even found myself, Eichmann-like, trying to justify what happened to that boy. Perhaps we did not know about that particular atrocity. Besides, the bad guys played equally rough. And anybody we put in to replace the shah — whom Henry Kissinger had certified as a friend of ours — might have been even more brutal. And there had been so much at stake. Freedom, after all, ran on oil; and since most of the free world's supply came through the Straits of Hormuz, and since the shah kept those open, it had been necessary for SAVAK, in the name of Thomas Jefferson, to do a little lopping. This line of thought was unsatisfactory.

It was followed by a serious attempt not to think about the matter at all. There were good, public-spirited reasons for that. For instance, since the Khomeini regime was using the boy's misfortune to justify the seizing of American hostages, any sympathy one felt for the lad ought perhaps to be suppressed on the grounds of patriotism. And if it were sympathy one wanted to feel, perhaps it was better to be thinking of those thousands of children currently being maimed and killed by Russians in Afghanistan, or of the millions of children starved and murdered by Russian puppets in Cambodia, or the tens of millions of American children the Russians will kill — want to kill — if they can get by with it.

Against such a somber backdrop, large as the sky, and as real, the tragedy of that Iranian child begins at last to seem smaller. However, it does not seem unrelated to ourselves. Because with Russia, a powerful, evil juggernaut running amok, it now seems likely that the Armageddon some people believe to be prophesied in the Bible is actually coming upon us. Very possibly, nothing at all can be done to stop it. And thus it seems advisable to come to our senses, and to carry as little guilt as possible to Judgment Day.

This is not to counsel breast-beating, but to suggest that if it is necessary for us to buy more surgical saws, they might be better applied to the necks of those tyrants whose regimes float on the blood of children. Now, indeed, is the time for swift and decisive action.

But this should consist of establishing strong American bases in the Middle East, and not of listening credulously while "tough-minded" academicans tell us how much in our self-interest it is to look the other way while our "friends" do their work. We did that in Iran and the real tough-minded truth of the matter is that it failed. It is too late for any more of that.

The critic was not enriched

By MARTIN BERNHEIMER
The Los Angeles Times

"You," she snarled. "With you I am quite angry." Mrs. Gripsolm — Bernadette Kalinina LaMarr Gripsolm, formidable widow of the synthetic-brass doorknob magnate — towered in the marble lobby crowded with symphonic intermissioners, her jewels and overstated jowls competing for attention.

"What," I asked, flashing what I hoped was my most disarming grin and eyeing my watch, "have I done to deserve your displeasure?"

"Last month you wrote three contemptible diatribes. All about television, which at last thank goodness is trying. All about wonderful artists who enrich our lives," she said, oozing contempt.

"Oh?" I asked. It seemed a safe response.

"The National Broadcasting Company puts on a wonderful program with Zubin Mehta" — a flutter of spangled lashes — "conducting the wonderful New York Philharmonic Orchestra. A really important relief from Laverne and Mindy. Magnificent music — Verdi and Wagner and Mozart and Beethoven. Leontyne Price sings like a goddess. Itzhak Perlman plays like a whirl of wind. The cameras took us so close we could see the perspiration on Zubin's brow. A marvel! How?" Mrs. Gripsolm demanded, "how could you say a single bad word about a program dedicated to Arturo Toscanini?"

"But Mrs. Gripsolm," I ventured, trying to look stern and persuasive. "That's just the point. Toscanini was a man of impeccable artistic integrity. He respected what the composer wanted. He hated glamor cults. He despised gimmickry and puffery. He often refused even to take a bow. He never tampered with the masterpieces entrusted to his care. He refused to cheapen his art. He regarded making music as a sacred trust."

I was off and talking.

"Look at what NBC did in his honor," I continued. "The program added up to little more than a 90-minute pops concert, with much of the music mutilated to fit between the endless, tasteless singing-commercial interruptions. Toscanini would have been horrified.

"And they put the orchestra in a fancy kitsch-mod setting, complete with abstract trees. The announcer kept gushing as if he were a blessed witness at the Second Coming. He found himself at a loss for adequate words. The cameras kept flitting around from one irrelevant detail to another, contradicting the flow and mood of the music in the process. It was distracting. It was disorienting. The program, a little bit of this and a little bit of that, made no sense as an entity. Mehta emoted for the cameras as if his very life depended on it. He conducted the audience more than he conducted the musicians."

"You are silly," purred Mrs. G. "It was inspiring. And even if it wasn't we should encourage NBC. Maybe next time could be better."

"Maybe," I half agreed, "and maybe not."

"But what about the other programs?" Mrs. G was not to be deterred. "A few days later, Zubin was back on the public network, to conduct a special benefit for the pension of the New York orchestra players. As if that wouldn't be enough, they had Luciano Pavarotti to sing. Pavarotti! The greatest tenor since Caruso. Maybe greater even. It was so heart-elevating. I cried and cried. Then I read your lousy review. I felt like crying all over again. You even admitted that you saw only the last part of the concert."

"Yes. I saw only the last part. I was out working earlier in the evening. But the Mehta-Pavarotti program wasn't a concert. It was more like a three-ring circus. That is what bothered me."

"It didn't bother the thousands of people who were screaming to their feet in New York," replied Mrs. G.

"No," I admitted reluctantly. "Apparently it didn't. But if the audience response is the only valid response, I could be replaced tomorrow by an applause meter."

"That," said my former friend, "might not be such a bad idea."

"Do you remember what happened at the end of the program?" I asked. "Do you remember how Mehta's ubiquitous buddy, Itzhak Perlman, popped up to sing — yes, sing — the jailer's lines before Pavarotti sang 'E lucevan le stelle' from Tosca? Poor Puccini. Do you remember how Mehta cut off Pavarotti's ovation so Perlman could play a solo violin encore? Do you remember how Pavarotti and Mehta played games with 'La donna e mobile' at Verdi's expense? Do you remember how the announcer gushed this time as if it were the Third Coming?"

"Pshaw," snarled Mrs. Gripsolm. "It was wonderful to see these geniuses having a little fun. Why should classical music always have to be so somberserious? Millions and trillions of people who never go to concerts may have tuned in and turned on."

PAVAROTTI
. . . three-ring circuses

"But," I countered, "what if millions tuned in and turned off? Or, worse, what if they got the impression that art was just one big, self-indulgent joke, something not worth taking seriously?"

"Only a fool would think such a thing," said Mrs. G., now a bit defensive. "Art," she added in a philosophical codetta, "always has to be sweetened a bit for the masses."

"Toscanini didn't think so," I added, knowing it would be wasted effort.

"You didn't even write what a beautiful voice he has, and how nice it was that he sang that aria for us. He didn't need to sing, you know. He was hired by the administration of the Juilliard just to teach."

"That," I said gratefully, "is the whole point. He didn't teach. He sang. We all know he sings beautifully — not as beautifully as the publicity machine might claim, perhaps, but beautifully. I have written that often. But here he was supposed to help some young talents understand the vocal, technical, artistic and professional problems that face them. He did nothing of the kind. He sat. He listened. He waved a pencil in the air, mouthed a few skimpy platitudes, and threw in an aria of his own at the drop of a groupie's kiss.

★ ★ ★

"That he did so was bad enough. But that he did so in front of TV cameras, with Juillard's blessings, that made it insufferable. What happened to artistic integrity? Just because Pavarotti makes the cover of Time magazine doesn't make him an international guru of the airwaves . . ."

There was no stopping me now, I thought.

"Why didn't he talk about interpretation?" I asked rhetorically. "About the relationship between words and music? About harmonic emphasis? About style? About period? Why didn't he worry about the composer's markings or about expressive talent? He just basked in his own prefabricated glory. The folks out there in Viewerland are supposed to think it is dazzling just because he is Pavarotti and the sponsor is Juillard."

"You cannot intimidate me, Mr. Critic," Mrs. Gripsolm declared while I inhaled self-righteously. "Who appointed you as arbiter of public taste anyway? Who said your oh, so superior perspective is the right one? Who says you know more than the honest people who are screaming bravo or the learned people who are running our numero uno conservatory?"

"I think I just heard the warning bells," I answered. "I think the intermission is over."

Mrs. Gripsolm wouldn't budge. Not yet anyway. "Just remember. Every time television turns to culture, it is opening a vast window to beauty. That should be enough." She turned, quivered a semi-courtly nod and disappeared into the crowd, leaving an aura of expensive perfume in her wake.

"But what if the media, despite all the avowed good intentions, devalue the very art they pretend to serve? What then?" I asked.

I was, of course, talking to myself.

HOW DOES A TUNE-UP SAVE YOU GASOLINE?

The engine is the power system of your car. When all parts function according to technical specification, your car runs with planned efficiency.

Naturally, engines "dirty up" through normal use. For example, a dirty air filter can waste up to 10% of your gasoline just trying to breathe. A faulty spark plug, or high tension wire can lose you another 8%, and an improperly adjusted choke can waste up to 30% of your gasoline.

These are just a few examples of gasoline waste that can be spotted by our "Gas Saver" tune-up. See your participating Texaco retailer for [illegible] details. The 15 point tune-up is guaranteed for the lesser of 9[illegible] or 5 000 km and prices apply to most passenger cars.

Opening lead — ten of diamonds.

A partnership generally does best by choosing as trumps the suit where they have the greatest number of cards. It follows that they usually select a combined eight-card suit rather than a combined seven-card suit, or a nine-card suit over an eight-card suit, or ten over nine, and so on.

However, the rule has its exceptions. There are times when an eight-card suit, divided 4-4, serves as a better trump holding than a nine-card suit. This hand from the team trials in 1966 provides an example.

If the hand is played at spades or notrump, declarer makes twelve tricks, period. At one table North-South got to seven spades, automatically down one, and at six other tables the final contract was either six spades or six notrump.

At only two tables was the excellent contract of seven diamonds reached. Played in diamonds, the grand slam was foolproof. All that declarer had to do was ruff a club in dummy to produce a thirteenth trick on top of the twelve he had started with. The thirteenth trick was not available in any contract but diamonds.

The advantage of playing the 4-4 fit rather than the 6-3 fit is that declarer makes an extra trump trick. With diamonds as trump, he scores five diamonds and six spades, but with spades as trumps, he scores only four diamonds and six spades. The eight-card suit serves more efficiently than the nine-card suit.

Note that North never rebid his spades, despite a holding of six of them, and that South never supported spades with the A-Q-9. Both players realized that the 4-4 trump suit would produce an extra trick or two that could not be scored if spades were trumps.

Rocky road ahead for western separatist groups

independence party could draw enough votes in the next B.C. election to ensure a New Democratic Party victory.

Outgoing association chairman Joan Detwiller had suggested at the beginning of the fractious meeting that the WNA might knit together splinter separatist groups.

Guest speaker Allan Robertson suggested the Canadian Constitution should be amended to give Western Canada a guaranteed voice in federal government.

He said this could be accomplished by either forming a constitutionalist party, which would take time, or by working through the provincial premiers.

Robertson said the time for action is now.

"The number of Western separatists is higher this week than ever before," he said, adding the reason could be tied directly to the election results.

Mrs. Detwiller told the Times in a phone interview today from her home in Ruskin, B.C., that she'll be cooperate with the new executive in the transfer of power.

She confessed to being somewhat relieved that she's out of the chairmanship, because she has recently retired as an accountant and is looking forward to taking it easy.

Mrs. Detwiller said she is all in favor of a political party, but she isn't convinced separatism is the answer.

"But that was the will of the meeting."

In Delta, long-time western separatist Edward G. Fleming remained aloof from the squabbling, repeating he wouldn't budge until he has convinced some prominent provincial politician to lead B.C. out of Confederation.

Asked about the WNA meeting, Fleming exploded. "I don't want to have anything to do with that NDP bunch," he said.

He said those members of the WNA who stopped short of pushing separatism had "lost their guts."

Asked about suggestions that entail working within Confederation to achieve Western goals, Fleming said: "That's the biggest joke of all. For 108 years, Ontario has been using Western Canada as a doormat."

He said his main hopes rest with a man who is already in the provincial government.

"People will listen to this man," Fleming said. "He believes in Western separatism now. It's just a matter of when he'll decide the time is right."

In case you're wondering

About 10 years ago, a rather splendid ceramic mural wall stood in the Victoria airport waiting room. When a few minor alterations took place, the mural was removed, never to be there again. About a year later, when it still hadn't been replaced, neither the airport manager nor the Department of Transport could tell me its whereabouts or future. One official suggested vaguely it was probably assigned to a more suitable site. Could you please find out what happened to this piece of art?

The official who suggested it was "probably assigned a more suitable site" must have fancied himself an art critic.

Jim Mills, the present airport manager, says the mural is stored away in crates.

"We just don't have an appropriate place to display it. We're looking forward to expansion so perhaps we'll be able to re-erect it then."

The mural was commissioned for the new terminal which opened in 1964 but was removed when renovations were carried out later.

The artist of the two-sided work is J.E. Ritchel, who lived at 1740 Lands End Road back in the early 60s, but who now lives with his wife, Maia (also an artist), in an apartment at 350 Douglas.

Ritchel was quite surprised at the sudden interest in a work commissioned 17 years ago.

He said the panel was almost 10 feet high and about 13 feet wide.

"It was 234 square feet of vitrified enamel on 18-gauge copper."

He described the work as a semi-abstract representation of transportation, with suggestions of fish, mountains, a cityscape and symbols of air travel.

Ritchel used to teach at St. Margaret's School here and at Queen Margaret's School in Duncan until about eight years ago, but he's far from retired.

"I design things, I make things."

Recollecting his work when it was still displayed, Ritchel said he once went to the airport to ship something and the shipping clerk recognized his name.

"He said that every time he looked at the mural it made him dizzy," Ritchel recalled with a laugh.

On another occasion, he happened by when a couple was discussing the mural with the airport manager. The manager suggested the couple could talk to the mural's creator and waved at Ritchel.

"I spent the next hour listening to the couple berate me about the mural and the waste of public money on such things."

Ritchel doesn't really care if the work is resurrected, especially if it needs repairs after being put in storage. He no longer has any of his enamelling equipment.

If your interest has been aroused by some feature of Victoria — or even some oddity — write to Wondering, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas.

Rec director takes new post

Bill Johnson, director of the Oak Bay Recreation Centre since it opened in 1975, will take over as director of parks and recreation in Powell River on Saturday.

A graduate in recreation from the University of British Columbia, Johnson was assistant superintendent of recreation in Port Alberni before coming to Oak Bay.

Dunc Russell, now superintendent of Oak Bay parks and recreation, was superintendent in Port Alberni at the time.

Johnson's old position is being advertised and Russell said today he is certain there will be many applicants.

"We have a fairly decent profile among recreation people in the province," he said. "We expect to get a good response, allowing us to be very selective."

Lansdowne takes third jazz title

Lansdowne junior secondary's Pilot Vocal Jazz Ensemble won for the third year in a row in the annual B.C. Vocal Jazz Festival in North Vancouver on the weekend.

The Victoria group of 30 singers, piano, drums and bass, directed by Tom White, also won the trophy in 1978 and 1979 as the top Canadian junior high entry.

About 40 groups totalling from B.C. and western Washington took part.

Camper burns out

Fire in a $6,000 camper at Stop Motors Ltd., 2524 Douglas, blackened the interior, caused $4,000 damage, then died through lack of oxygen on the weekend.

Victoria fire department said the blaze apparently started in upholstery and burned unnoticed. It wasn't discovered until salesman Joe Silva unlocked it.

Victoria makes hay while the sun shines

What do you do on a February afternoon when the sun shines and the temperature soars? You get outside, obviously. One of the most popular spots for strollers, cyclists and joggers as usual was the park along Dallas Road (top photo). Those less inclined to exercise simply stretched out and soaked up the warmth, as Anne-Marie Bourque and friend (bottom photo) did on deck at Fishermen's wharf. Ann-Marie, from the Magdalen Islands off Prince Edward Island, caught up on her crocheting. And as you might expect, frisbees were in full flight, including the one that Shannon Carby (right photo) is reaching for on the UVic campus in Gordon Head. The temperature at Gonzales weather station Sunday reached a high of 12 degrees Celsius and made it to 13.6 at Victoria International Airport, which was just short of the record high for Feb. 24 of 14.4 set in 1943. It was too good to last, though, as Victoria trudged back to work this morning under cloudy skies facing a forecast of occasional rain lasting through Tuesday.

Arts criticism hitting 'close to home'

City arts groups resent the criticism in a recent report on muncipal cultural grants because it hits close to home, Allan Purdy said today.

"I'm not surprised," said the chairman of the intermunicipal cultural funding subcommittee.

"The people who have complained are the people who are in trouble."

The report praised the artistic quality of Victoria cultural groups, but said a number of them must shape up administratively. It said several should co-operate and merge their administrative and promotional sections.

"They've been told this by other organizations, that if they don't set their homes in order they're going to suffer.

"We're not the only people saying this. The Canada Council started this whole mess," said Purdy.

The federal agency last year announced more stringent controls on cultural grants and cut back in many areas.

Purdy said Tom Fielding of the provincial government's cultural branch has also been telling B.C. groups in strong language that they must shape up and be more accountable.

Individual arts administrators will say privately what the subcommittee said in its report, that there's too much duplication of services, Purdy said. But in a meeting of all of them together, they unite against any criticism from outside.

"We could have criticized the Belfry to high heaven if we'd given them $100,000," Purdy said.

The Belfry is one of six organizations the report suggested should co-operate in establishing a central office for administration and promotion.

Manager John Linfield said Purdy had been at the Belfry only once and suggested he wasn't familiar with its operations.

"That's absolutely asinine," Purdy replied today.

The subcommittee met with representatives of all 32 groups which applied for money, however, and at this mass gathering Linfield never said a word, Purdy stated.

"I wonder what they're complaining about. Are they personally offended or do they really care about the arts?"

He also noted that the subcommittee is actually recommending a 22-per-cent increase in municipal grants to the arts over what was handed out in 1979.

If the intermunicipal committee and the councils of Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt go along with the report's findings, a total of $226,000 will be spent.

Last year, grants totalled $185,000.

Purdy also pointed out that last year, at the subcommittee's urging, all local arts groups were exempted from municipal property taxes — a considerable subsidy in itself.

"I don't think the committee did a bad job."

Piurdy said it would be hard to find a group of people better qualified than the members of the subcomittee — former symphony president John Di Castri, arts council president Tommy Mayne, Colin Graham, director emeritus of the Victoria art gallery, artist Carol Sabiston and Harold Moist.

Towing firm 'ripoff' has visitor fuming

A tourist from Vancouver, Wash., is so angry at the way he was treated by a local towing company he said today he's willing to spend $1,000 on ads in U.S. papers warning prospective visitors away from Victoria.

Gordon's Towing hauled Bob Gregg's rental car away from a lot behind Gallagher's restaurant on Wharf Sunday night. He didn't see the signs warning motorists their cars may be towed away if they don't buy a ticket.

Gregg's not arguing about the towaway but what happened after.

"We feel we got ripped off," he said.

After dinner, he found his car missing, spotted the signs and phoned Gordon's Towing. The operator on duty at Gordon's lot, 50 Songhees, told him the charge would be $14.

He and his wife and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Charles McVean of Memphis, Tenn., walked over the Johnson Street bridge to the lot to bail out the car.

On the walk over, the impoundment fee had risen to $16 — Gregg's first beef. Then the operator refused to give them the prevailing exchange rate on the U.S. $20 he used to pay the bill.

The tow lot operator said Gregg could have the car back if he paid in Canadian funds, if he still had it when Gregg returned. The tourist went to his car and saw the steering wheel had been bent out of shape, presumably in the tow across the bridge.

Gregg said he was told to fill out a form and mail it to the boss, but he figured a form arriving with a Vancouver, Wash., postmark would not get very sympathetic treatment.

Then he noticed Gordon's Chargex sign and offered to pay by credit card, but by then the operator said he no longer had the $20 bill.

This was the final insult, so he asked the operator to call the police.

"They were no more co-operative than he was," said Gregg.

They refused to give him the young tow lot operator's name, and one of the police officers refused to identify himself when asked. The police told him to hire a lawyer to get the name, Gregg said.

"We were perfectly willing to pay the money," he said. He didn't mind the towaway itself "but I do mind getting ripped off."

After flying over in a private plane from the San Juan Islands where Gregg has a summer home, the foursome spent the day touring Victoria and the Gulf Islands.

Gregg said he may also cancel his order for one of the Trigull amphibious aircraft to be built by Trident Aircraft Ltd. of Sidney.

The manager of Gordon's Towing said he hadn't been informed of the incident but would check into it. He said the company's policy is to pay the exchange rate on U.S. funds if the driver asks for it.

Me, go to dancing school?

My word. What would our friends at the club say? I mean, really, we're not the kind who go to dancing school. Dancing school is where my daughter learns ballet. Right?
Wrong. Now I know differently. Dancing school is where all kinds of interesting people (singles, marrieds, young, old) learn to dance. And I love it.
You'll love it, too. You can learn the Hustle. Swing. Cha-cha. Slow Dance. Rock. And it's so easy. Would you believe my darling Charles and I were the hit of the Charity Ball?

company reports

WCI Canada

WCI Canada Ltd. of Toronto reports its net income in 1979 was 12.34 million or $1.48 a share, including $200,000 or 12 cents a share of unspecified extra-ordinary income, compared with $2.36 million or $1.50 a share in 1978. Sales were $116.56 million, up from $10.14 million.

The company said its directors decided to pass the quarterly dividend because of cash requirements to expand new product lines, including manufacture of the Frigidaire brand in Canada. WCI paid a dividend of 22.5 cents in the quarter ending in December and 90 cents in all of 1979.

Dome

Dome Petroleum Ltd. reports a successful year in 1979 with net income after provision for deferreed income taxes totalling $181,711,000 or $3.90 per share, up from $125,132,000 or $2.79 for 1978.

In its financial statement, the Calgary-based company said its eash flow in 1979 increased to $323,395,000 or $7.25 per share from $198,741,000 or $4.43 the year before.

The company produced 90,940 barrels a day of oil, natural gas liquids and oil equivalent to natural gas in 1979, up from 65,657 barrels in 1978.

Dome drilled 1,770,000 feet of exploratory wells last year, up 94 per cent from 1978 and representing 13 per cent of all exploratory footage drilled in Canada.

Craigmont

Craigmont Mines Ltd. reports its net earnings for the quarter ended Jan. 31 reached $3,378,000, down from $4,165,000 in the same period last year.

The earnings represent 67 cents a share, down from 82 cents a share in the first quarter of 1979.

Company officials said the decline in earnings was caused by a substantial reduction in the average grade of ore milled from 1.22 per cent in the first quarter of 1979 to 0.68 per cent in 1980.

Earnings include an extraordinary gain of $1,558,000 from the sale of 51,668 shares of Placer Development Ltd. which the company purchased several years ago.

Drummond

Drummond McCall Inc., reports profits for the year ended Dec. 31, 1979, of $8.2 million, or $2.82 a share, up from $4.7 million, or $1.66 a share, in 1978.

Earnings for the last quarter of 1979 increased to $1.7 million, or 55 cents a share, from $1.2 million, or 42 cents a share.

Sales increased 41 per cent to $210.9 million in 1979 and five per cent to $52.2 million in the fourth quarter.

The company noted 1978 earnings included extraordinary items of $116,000 for the final quarter and $526,000 for the year.

Petrofina

Petrofina Canada has announced that profits in 1979 almost tripled to $61.6 million, or $6.13 a share, from $23.3 million, or $2.33 a share, in 1978.

The company, afflicted by a refinery strike at its Montreal operation since Dec. 9, attributed the success to higher prices and production rates for crude oil and natural gas, as well as increased margins on refined products, including petrochemicals.

Cash flow from operations in 1979 totalled $121.6 million, or $12.10 a share, compared with $56.4 million, or $5.63 a share, in 1978, while gross revenue rose to $764 million from $594 million.

Petrofina's average daily production of crude oil and natural gas liquids, excluding synthetic crude, advanced 14.9 per cent to 3,300 cubic metres, or 20,500 barrels, while natural gas sales rose 11.6 per cent to an average of 2.3 million cubic metres, or 81,400 cubic feet, a day.

Campeau

Campeau Corp. of Toronto reports its operating income jumped to $4.8 million or $1.09 a common share from $523,000 or less than one cent a share in 1978.

An extraordinary item of $1.8 million brought net income to $6.60 million or $1.55. There were no extraordinary items in 1978.

Gross revenues rose to $244.7 million from $209.17 million in 1978.

Placer

Significant increases in world metal prices during 1979 have resulted in improved earnings for Placer Development Ltd., the company says, reporting net earnings for the year ended Dec. 31, 1979 of $113.12 million or $9.33 a share compared with net earnings of $20.18 million or $1.67 a share in 1978.

The 1979 earnings included an extraordinary gain of $38.59 million through the exchange of Placer's 27.1 per cent interest in Mattagami Lake Mines Ltd. for a 5.5 per cent interest in Noranda Mines Ltd.

Higher prices received for copper and molybdenum accounted for the increase in earnings before the extraordinary gain, the company said in a news release.

And although molybdenum production at Placer's Endako mine was reduced by a strike, 1979 sales were at prices higher than the customary producer price because of a short world supply. The average price received in 1979 was $26.58 a kilogram U.S.

Afton

Afton Mines Ltd. reports net profits of $5.4 million or $1.43 a share for the quarter ended Dec. 31.

No direct comparison can be made with the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1978, because the open-pit copper mine near Kamloops started operation in April of that year.

"During the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1979, the outstanding debt was reduced by a further U.S. $13 million and now stands at U.S. $71 million," president R. E. Hallbauer told the annual meeting.

Donohue

Donohue Inc. reports profits for 1979 rose to $13.7 million, or $7.42 a share, from $8.6 million, or $4.60 a share, in 1978.

Fourth-quarter profit for the pulp and paper company climbed to $6 million, or $3.28 a share, from $715,000, or 36 cents a share.

Sales and earnings during the first half of 1979 and the last quarter of 1978 "were adversely affected by prolonged strikes in newsprint and lumber operations," Donohue noted.

Fraser Inc.

Fraser Inc. reports 1979 fourth-quarter net income of $7,054,000 or $1 a share on record sales of $82,415,000.

In the same quarter in 1978, net income was $6,201,000 or 88 cents a share on sales of $71,157,000.

For the full year in 1979, shipments, net sales revenue and net income reached new highs, the company said. Shipments increased seven per cent over 1978, producing sales of $321,038,000, up 21 per cent from 1978 sales of $265,129,000.

Net income also rose 21 per cent to $27,395,000 or $3.88 a share, compared with $22,579,000 or $3.20 a share in 1978.

The company said marjets for most of its products should remain strong in 1980, but results are expected tp ooffset to some degree by increasing costs, particularly for energy.

Maritime T&T

Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd. earned net income of $4,746,000 in the last three months of 1978, the company has reported.

Last year's net earnings for the same period amounted to $4,006,000.

Earnings per common share for the period rose from 55 cents in 1978 to 68 cents in 1979.

McGraw-Hill

McGraw-Hill Ryerson Ltd. of Toronto has reported its 1979 net income fell slightly to $2.50 million or $1.26 a share from $2.55 million or $1.28 a share in 1978.

Net sales were $24.57 million compared with $24.04 million the previous year.

The company said money for instructional materials in elementary schools has shifted toward reading and mathematics, where McGraw-Hill Ryerson has relatively few publications.

Declining school enrolments and budget cuts also adversely affected 1979 earnings.

Resource Group

Montreal-based Resource Service Group Ltd. reported its 1979 earnings jumped to $6.5 million, or 86 cents a share, from $3.6 million, or 60 cents a share, in 1978.

The resource industry supplier, also involved in oil and gas exploration, noted per-share earnings did not include an extraordinary profit of 64 cents a share in 1979 and 22 cents a share in 1978.

Asbestos Corp.

Asbestos Corp. Ltd. recorded profits of $17.6 million in 1979, or $6.22 a share, up 13 per cent from $15.6 million, or $5.51 a share in the previous year, the company has reported. Sales rose to $171.8 million from $147.1 million in 1978. Company president Maurice Taschereau said prospects for the future were "encouraging."

Truckers shatter Fuller Lake jinx

Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking pulled off a stunning upset Saturday, humbling second-place Fuller Lake Flyers 14-7 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Lake Cowichan Arena.

It was Lake Cowichan's first victory over Fuller Lake since Feb. 11, 1977.

Best-of-three semi-final playoffs start Wednesday with Oak Bay Trios facing Flyers at Fuller Lake. Juan de Fuca plays Saanich Braves at 3:45 p.m. Saturday at Pearkes Arena in the first game of the other series.

Killanin: Games for good in world

Times News Services

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — The Americans, who made these 13th Winter Olympic Games their own, closed them Sunday night with a thunder of fireworks and a ringing rendition of their national anthem.

From an achievement standpoint, these were not a successful Games for Canada, but wherever they went, Canadians have been greeted with a quiet "thanks, Canada," based upon Canadian help in rescuing United States diplomats during the upheaval in Iran.

Flash cubes flickered like summer lightning.

At the procession of flags, there were howls of cheers for the U.S. contingent, and — again — cries of "thanks, Canada" as the Canadian banner was marched through.

For the last time, the Olympic flame flickered at one end of the arena while at the other, massed choirs sang.

It was almost as if visitors to this Adirondack town couldn't bear to part with the Olympic Games and these closing ceremonies began 40 minutes late.

It all began with a jazz concert, followed by selections by John Philip Sousa and it was a happy crowd.

For Lord Killanin, head of the International Olympic Committee, the crowd sang Danny Boy.

In a departure from tradition in which the IOC head merely makes a statement closing the Games, Killanin made an impromptu speech that appeared to address President Carter's demand that the United States pull out of the Moscow Olympics this summer:

"These Games proved that we can do something to contribute to good in the world whatever our differences may be. If we can all come together, it will be for a better world and perhaps we can avoid the holocaust which may well be upon us."

Amy Carter, daughter of the president, presented a bouquet of flowers to figure skater Robin Cousins of Great Britain, who won the men's figure skating title. Cousins skated with other 1980 Olympic champions in an exhibition preceding the final ceremony.

Flagbearers and athletes paraded into the ice arena. The athletes trooped in without distinction of nationality.

Hanny Wenzel carried her banner for Liechtenstein, the tiny European principality for which she had won the first Olympic gold medals in women's slalom and giant slalom ski races.

Eric Heiden, who set an all-time Winter Games record of five gold medals in men's speed skating, carried the banner for the United States onto the ice where only hours before the U.S. hockey team had won its first gold medal in 20 years.

Killanin declared the Games closed and said "I call upon the youth of all countries to assemble four years from now at Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, to celebrate with us the fourteenth Olympic Winter Games."

At the end of the ceremonies, torchbearers brought in the Olympic flame and it was extinguished for another four years. Then folk dancers from the northeastern United States joined dancers from Yugoslavia in a celebration of the passing of the Winter Games from one country to the other.

Heiden completed his sweep of the five men's speed-skating events Saturday by winning the 10,000 metres in world-record time and became the first athlete ever to mount the winner's rostrum five times in a single Winter Olympics.

Liechtenstein was indebted to the Wenzels. Hanni's victory in Saturday's slalom followed a triumph Thursday in the giant slalom. Earlier, she had finished second in the downhill.

Together with the silver won by Hanni's brother Andreas in the men's giant slalom, made up Liechtenstein's total haul of medals.

Among the countries behind Liechtenstein in the medal table were the Netherlands, Switzerland, Italy, France, Czechoslovakia — and Canada.

The Canadians got a silver medal from Gaetan Boucher of Ste. Foy, Que., who chased Heiden home in the 1,000-metre speed-skating event, and a bronze from Steve Podborski of Toronto in men's downhill skiing.

Ken Read of Calgary, one of the favorites in the men's downhill, appeared to have a chance of catching Leonhard Stock of Austria, the eventual gold medallist, when the binding of one of his skis broke.

Another unfortunate Canadian was 15-year-old Steve Collins of Thunder Bay, the youngest competitor in Saturday's 90-metre ski jump. Well in contention for a medal after his first attempt, the sensational youngster had a tail wind on his second, reducing the lift a jumper needs to achieve his best distance.

He dropped back to ninth in the field of 50 while Jouko Tourmanen of Finland, Hubert Neuper of Austria and a second Finn, Jari Puikkonen, jumped into a head wind for the top three placings.

Americans win Olympic hockey gold

By ROSS HOPKINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — He never tasted Olympic victory as a player, but now he is savoring the triumph of a gold-medal as coach of the United States hockey team.

Herb Brooks, who led the University of Minnesota to two National Collegiate Athletic Association hockey titles, now will be remembered as the mastermind behind the Cinderella story of the 1980 Winter Games.

A country already caught up in the miraculous efforts of speedskater Eric Heiden was lifted to even greater heights Sunday as the U.S. team, which had stunned the hockey world with a 4-3 victory over the Soviet Union on Friday, defeated Finland 4-2 to win the Olympic hockey gold for the first time in 20 years.

Brooks well remembers that 1960 effort at Squaw Valley, Calif. He was the last man cut from the squad.

The hockey team entered this tournament as an unheralded bunch of university players from a country lacking much of a hockey tradition. Yet they showed Sunday that maybe there is a substitute for experience.

Their unquenchable desire to win and refusal to quit brought victory against the acknowleged best in the world — the Soviet Union. And that same group of no-names kept its composure and rebounded from a 2-1 deficit after two periods Sunday to defeat the Finns.

"You are watching a group of people who startled the athletic world — not just the hockey world, but the athletic world," Brooks said. "They are deserving of so much, in view of their age, and how much they've accomplished in so short a time.

Third-period goals from Phil Verchota, Rob McClanahan and Mark Johnson completed the storybook finish.

The Soviet Union, meanwhile, rebounded from the loss to the U.S., its first since a 5-4 setback against Czechoslovakia at the 1968 Games in Grenoble, France, to humble Sweden 9-2 for the silver medal. The Swedes took the bronze. Finland was fourth, Czechoslovakia fifth and Canada sixth.

"We'll probably wake up tomorrow morning and still not believe it," said Mark Johnson, a inspirational leader both on and off the ice.

It was Johnson who twice pulled the Americans even against the Russians before captain Mike Eruzione netted the winner with 10 minutes to go. And it was Johnson who set up McClanahan for Sunday's gold medal clincher and then scored an insurance goal to seal the victory.

Johnson, whose father Bob coached the U.S. team at the '76 Olympics, dug the puck out from behind the Finnish net and fed McClanahan, who jammed the puck between goaltender Jorma Veltonen and the right post at 6:05 of the third period. The overflow crowd of more than 8,500 went wild with its repetitious chant of "U-S-A, U-S-A."

Then, at 16:25, with the U.S. a man short, Johnson intercepted a loose puck in the Finnish zone. Veltonen stopped his initial shot but the American fireplug was not to be denied and rammed home the clincher off the rebound.

When the final buzzer sounded, fans and players alike hugged and wept.

President Jimmy Carter telephoned the victorious dressing room. "Everyone in our country is proud," Carter told Brooks.

The team will visit the White House today, along with the remainder of the U.S. Olympic delegation. Then team members will disband and return to their respective homes.

"That's one of the saddest parts of it all," Eruzione said. "After we see the president tomorrow, we'll go our separate ways and we may not see each other again."

Fifteen of the U.S. players have been drafted by National Hockey League teams and 10 are reported to be ready to sign pro contracts.

The same is true for Brooks, who refers to his team as a "family" much like Willie Stargell and Pittsburgh Pirates of baseball's National League. He is rumored headed for New York Rangers.

GOLD MEDAL GLORY brings jubilation for Eric Strobel and goalie James Craig of United States hockey club as they hug each other at end of Sunday's game, in which U.S. came from behind to defeat Finland 4-2 and capture title in Winter Olympic Games at Lake Placid, N.Y. (AP laserphoto)

Islanders' coach looking for help

By The Canadian Press

It was a game that started with a moving response to the victory of the United States hockey team in the Winter Olympics and ended in a series of brawls. But, in between, the Rangers found time Sunday to hang an 8-2 beating on their cross-town rivals, the Islanders, in a battle of New York's National Hockey League powers.

Ron Duguay, Phil Esposito and Walt Tkaczuk each scored twice for the Rangers, who moved past idle Atlanta into third place in the Patrick Division, one point behind the slumping Islanders, who lost for the fifth time in six games.

The players lined up on their respective bluelines before the game and, without any announcement being heard on the public address system, the Madison Square Garden crowd of 17,418 spontaneously broke into chants of "U.S.A., U.S.A." and produced a 90-second standing ovation. The crowd then sang America the Beautiful and another standing ovation followed.

Esposito's goals, his 25th and 26th of the season, were his first at home since Dec.9. He scored his last 11 on the road.

In the game's final 12 minutes, referee Ron Hoggarth called six major penalties, eight minors, a game misconduct and a 10-minute misconduct.

Islanders' coach Al Arbour was disconsolate: "A very bad effort. We've been inconsistent all year. We're considering making some changes with players from Indianapolis. Some of them are obviously ready to play here."

Elsewhere, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Buffalo Sabres 3-1, Quebec Nordiques shut out Pittsburgh Penguins 2-0, Detroit Red Wings downed Minnesota North Stars 7-5, Boston Bruins defeated Edmonton Oilers 4-2 and Washington Capitals tied Colorado 1-1.

Goals by Cougars didn't spoil effect

By ERNIE FEDORUK

You needed all the fingers of at least three hands to count the National Hockey League scouts among the crowd of 3,427 in Memorial Arena on Saturday night.

Among them, and after Regina Pats and Victoria Cougars had skated through their Western Hockey league encounter on even terms for almost 50 minutes, it was Ron Caron of Montreal Canadiens who offered the interesting desire of a neutral.

"In a game like this, I just hope the goal that wins it is a good one. Nothing cheap. It would spoil the effect," said Caron.

Less than a minute later, and with only nine minutes and one second remaining, Victoria defenceman and captain Mark Robinson blasted a blazing shot that broke a 1-1 deadlock and opened the door on a 3-1 Cougar victory over the Eastern Division leaders.

Obviously one who interests the scouts, Wickenheiser showed his scoring ability only once. Cutting in on Victoria goaltender Grant Fuhr, the Regina captain fired a hard shot that glanced off a post and came right back to Wickenheiser. He quickly snapped the puck past Fuhr without breaking stride. Many other juniors wouldn't have been ready for the fast rebound.

The scouts, while they are not supposed to be interested in 17-year-olds, also were impressed with Fuhr. He had the bird-dogs buzzing after making several exceptional stops, the best of which was another attempt by Wickenheiser, on a clear breakaway while the Pats were shorthanded.

The importance of the victory lies with the fact that Regina looms as the power in the Eastern Division. But in suffering their 19th setback (and 20th on Sunday), both the Cougars (with only 15 defeats) and Portland Winter Hawks (with 17) gained ground in the race for overall point honors and possible home-ice advantage for the playoffs.

New Westminster Bruins, who face the Cougars at Memorial Arena on Tuesday, provided more help for the West's first-place challengers by clipping Regina 4-3 on Marc Chartier's goal at 3:42 in overtime.

But additional help for the Cougars, from Brandon, failed to materialize as the Winter Hawks defeated the Wheat Kings 6-5. The victory moved Portland three points ahead of Victoria in their race for first place.

In other games Sunday, Calgary Wranglers clouted Saskatoon Blades 8-3 while Billings Bighorns ruined the Lethbridge coaching debut of Vic Stasiuk by defeating the Broncos 5-2. Stasiuk, former Medicine Hat Tigers' coach, took over the Broncos' reins after Mike Sauter resigned Sunday afternoon.

In another development, New Westminster owner-coach Ernie McLean got off the hook on an assault charge in Portland when he reached a civil compromise with a 19-year-old female fan he was accused of pushing after a game on Nov. 16. It means the case, scheduled for trial next month, has been dropped.

Alberta skein ends

Times News Services

An upset and a near upset highlighted the third round of the Canadian women's curling championship Sunday night in Edmonton.

Alberta's brief two-game unbeaten streak came to an end when New Brunswick's Denise Lavigne scored a 9-8 extra-end victory over Barb Davis of Lethbridge. In another extra-end game, Dorothy Crowe of St. Bruno, Que., defeated Donna Brownridge of Winnipeg 9-8.

Nova Scotia's Colleen Jones made it three in a row with a 6-4 victory over Newfoundland's Sue Anne Bartlett.

In other games, Regina's Marj Mitchell clobbered Elayne Thomson of Prince Edward Island 13-1 in six ends while Christine Bodogh of St. Catherines, Ont., handed Joan Dexter of New Westminster her third straight loss, 8-5.

In afternoon games, Alberta defeated Quebec 11-5, Nova Scotia beat Ontario 5-3, Newfoundland took P.E.I. 11-7, the Territories got by Saskatchewan 7-5 and B.C. took New Brunswick 11-9.

Nova Scotia leads with three straight wins while the Territories, with a bye in the third round, are unbeaten in two games.

Alberta, Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick are at 2-1, Saskatchewan has split its two starts, Newfoundland is 1-2 while Manitoba, B.C and P.E.I. are winless.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Saturday, Quebec edged Ontario 6-5 in the championship game to win the 1980 Canadian junior men's curling title.

Denis Marchand's foursome scored the winner in the 10th end when Ontario skip John Kawaja was heavy with his final shot.

The Quebec team, which also includes third Denis Cecil, second Yves Barrette and lead Larry Phillips, Jr., will represent Canada at the 1981 world junior men's curling championship at Megev, France, in March.

Quebec advanced to the final by defeating Stacey Coomber of British Columbia 5-4 in a semi-final game.

Delesalle dominates gymnastics trials

Times News Services

Philip Delesalle of Victoria dominated competition during the weekend at a gymnastics meet in Toronto to select Canada's team for the 1980 Olympic Games.

There is a second qualifying meet, in May at Alma, Que., although the gymnasts still don't know if Canada will be sending athletes to Moscow.

Delesalle placed first over-all after optional and compulsory routines. He was first on every apparatus except the high bar, won by Jean Choquette of Montreal who was second over-all.

Third over-all was Marc Eppreht of Toronto. Marty Sharpe, a native of Winnipeg, Nigel Rothwell of Windsor, Ont., and Owen Walstrom of Victoria followed.

Delesalle, 21, said he'll be extremely disappointed if Canada does not send an Olympic team to Moscow.

Canada's best male gymnast works on a maintenance crew at a sawmill in Port Alberni and trains in a gym that once was a supermarket. Part of his work day includes lugging 60-pound blocks of wood which, he adds, might come in handy.

"If I don't get to go to the Olympics after working toward it for four years, I'll throw some of those 60-pound blocks from Port Alberni to Ottawa."

Seasprays produce power in openers

Victoria Seasprays created a lasting impression on two of their opponents in the newly-formed Pacific Northwest Field Lacrosse League at the weekend.

The Victoria club trampled Vancouver Burrards 28-7 Sunday before approximately 200 fans at Centennial Stadium after thrashing Burnaby Lakers 26-5 before a crowd of about 400 at the same site Saturday.

Seaspray manager George Grover said the Sunday game featured better play than the Saturday contest as the Victoria club moved out to take quarter leads of 6-2, 15-5 and 19-6.

Dennis Somner set the pace for Seasprays on Sunday and was named the star of the game after connecting for four goals and four assists while clubmate Kevin Alexander came up with four goals and three assists.

Tarey Pollock had three goals and two assists and other triples were added by Art Webster and Jeevan Dillon.

Bill Marechek scored twice and had three assists while other double tallies were contributed by Andy Reid and Jim Lynch. Singles were added by Larry Bell, Mike Thomas, Owen Richman, Gord Christians and Tom Woods.

Jim Lightbody assisted on five goals.

Vancouver, which dropped a narrow 14-13 decision to host North Shore in another Saturday contest, was led by Randy Delmonico's three goals, Darryl Aube counted twice and singles came from Ray Richards and Tony Vendrasco.

On Saturday, Lynch set the pace for Victoria and assumed star status with nine goals and three assists while Alexander had three goals and eight assists. Thomas scored five goals and had two assists, Pollock had three goals and two assists and Dillon added two goals. Lightbody, Bell, Somner and Marechek contributed singles.

Vic Culos (2), Eric Cowieson, Dave Robinson and Jim Dorman scored for Burnaby, which trailed by quarter scores of 8-0, 15-2 and 19-2.

Seasprays visit the Mainland next weekend to play Vancouver on Saturday and Burnaby on Sunday.

Cockle, Pollock topple tenpin doubles records

Maureen (Mo) King, Teresa Davison, Bertha Saxby and Marlene Mitchell joined Lorna Pollock and Edy Cockle in the championship parade Sunday but it was the victorious doubles combination that rattled the pins for the loudest noise in the 39th annual Victoria Women's Tenpin Bowling Association's tournament.

A dominant personality on city lanes in recent years, Pollock came up with the highest triple rolled in Victoria in 37 years and joined Cockle in setting records in both scratch and handicap events as they swept the doubles in the competition at Mayfair Lanes.

Lorna's 189-267-236 — 692 series is the highest scratch total recorded in Victoria since Dolly Hume rolled a 713 series in 1943.

Cockle added a 205-171-177 — 553 and the combination established new highs in with their 1,245 scratch and (plus 166) 1,411 handicap totals.

King, another perennial threat, walked off with the scratch singles with a 608 series while Davison, graduating out of junior ranks with a 140 average, rolled a 192-160-192 — 544 scratch tally that combined with her 162 handicap allowance to giver her the handicap singles title with a 706 total.

Mitchell, with a 565 series in the singles, 601 in the doubles and 546 in the team competition the previous weekend, won the all-events scratch championship with 1,712.

Saxby, who owns a 153 average, won the all-events handicap crown with 2,041, including 548 in singles, 618 in doubles, 497 in team competition and a 378 handicap.

Blankings mark Cup round

Six of the seven Jackson Cup matches ended in shutouts at the weekend in the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

Cosmopolitan Royals of the fourth division came up with the only upset by toppling Saanich Braves of the third division 5-0 Sunday at Topaz Park.

In other Sunday matches, Castaways I defeated Vantreights II 2-0 at Heywood Avenue Park, Victoria West I dropped Duncan III 3-0 in Duncan, Nanaimo II bounced Lakehill III 7-0 in the Hub City and Powell River I edged visiting Port Alberni II, 2-1.

On Saturday, Cosmopolitan Royals blanked Meston's Auto Body 2-0 in an all first-division tussle at Royal Athletic Park.

Barry Sadler recorded the shutout in goal for the veteran-studded Cosmo Royals.

Cal Young came up with the shutout for Castaways, Jim de Goede chalked up the shutout for Vikings, Dave McLeod blocked all shots on the Nanaimo II net and Mike Kliska was the shutout netminder for Cosmo Royals I.

Quarter-final matches in the annual competition are scheduled to be played March 15-16.

Oak Bay pressed hard for the equallizer early in the second half and Nanaimo goalie Don Marshall was forced to make an outstanding save on a shot by Mark McNally-Dawes. Another Oak Bay scoring attempt by John Nosh was cleared on the goal line by a defender.

Watson's rivals skid

Times News Services

Tom Watson won the $250,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament Sunday when both Bob Gilder and 50-year-old Don January skidded out of a first-place deadlock with bogeys on the final hole.

Watson, scored an even-par 71 for a 276 total, finishing one stroke ahead of both Gilder and January.

In becoming the only two-time winner on the western winter tour of the PGA, Watson collected $45,000 while Gilder and January each won $22,000.

After 17 holes the three were tied and Watson then shot a routine par and awaited the final group.

First January and then Gilder, after missing the 18th green and coming up short of the hole on approach shots, failed by narrow margins to drop the putts that would have put them into a sudden-death playoff.

January, the angular Texan, pulled himself into the contending trio by scoring birdies at the 14th and 15th holes of the Riviera Country Club course on the sunny afternoon. He sank a 40-foot chip shot on the 15th.

Watson wasn't too pleased with his game, but his $45,000 first prize put him ahead of the PGA money-winning list, which he has headed for the past three seasons. He has now won $106,545 for 1980.

In a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at Sarasota, Fla., JoAnne Carner fought off a determined bid by Sandra Post to win by one shot.

Carner, who last May suffered a career-threatening wrist injury in a motorcycle accident, started Sunday's final round tied with Post at five under par. But after touring Bent Tree's tough front nine in one-over, she solved a putting problem and registered successive birdies on the back nine to finish with a three-under 69 and a 72-hole total of 280.

Post threatened with a birdie on 18 but Carner hit the 471-yard, par-five green in two shots and safely three-putted for the victory, which was worth $15,000.

Vikettes show their best

Their latest winning margins were a study of contrasts but the University of Victoria basketball teams both displayed sharpness that their coaches welcomed as they prepare for the Canada West University Athletic Association playoffs.

The Vikettes, coming up with what coach Kathy Shields felt was "our best defensive game" of the season, overwhelmed UBC Thunderettes 86-35 Saturday at McKinnon Gymnasium to complete their CWUAA women's campaign with a glossy 19-1, won-lost record.

The solitary blot was administered by Calgary Dinnies, who provide Victoria's opposition in the best-of-three championship series here next weekend.

The Vikings ran their men's streak to 18 by clipping UBC 72-69 despite a gallant and gritty performance by the Thunderbirds of coach Peter Mullins.

"I can't believe the job Mullins has done," said Viking coach Ken Shields. "They deserve a shot at the playoffs."

Unfortunately for UBC (now 10-8), Calgary Dinosaurs need only one victory to seal a berth in the final against Victoria.

Vikings had a clear edge in rebounding (39-18) and shooting (54 to 43 per cent) but couldn't shake the tenacious Thunderbirds, who trailed 41-40 at the half.

Vikettes dominated their rivals by an even greater margin, including a 46-14 advantage in turnovers.

The Dinnies, meanwhile, suffered an unexpected loss in Saskatoon as Saskatchewan Huskiettes upset Calgary 61-59. At Edmonton, Alberta Pandas defeated Lethbridge 68-52.

In men's action, the Dinosaurs moved closer to clinching second place by overwhelming Saskatchewan 104-75. In Edmonton, Alberta Golden Bears topped Lethbridge 80-79.

Thunder stuns Ramblers

Surprises added some spice to high school basketball action Saturday.

Cowichan Thunderettes produced the biggest surprise, rallying from a 29-21 half-time deficit to surprise Mt. Douglas Ramblers 56-54 and capture the Vancouver Island senior girls' championship.

Bev Chaster, Sandy Murcer and Twon Klawer each scored 13 points for Cowichan while Alison Snow counted 16 for Mt. Doug, host for the Island tournament.

Chaster, Snow, Lora Favor, also of Mt. Doug, Janet Conn of Port Alberni and Lori Glomlein of Cowichan were named to the all-star team.

Alberni joined Cowichan and Mt. Doug in the advance to the provincial tournament at Vancouver, March 5-8, by clipping Courtenay 68-49 behind the 14-point performance of Conn. Tracy Bickle scored 20 for Courtenay.

The Dave Morgan-coach Oak Bay Bays raised eyebrows in the South Island tournament at UVic's McKinnon Gym by upsetting Mt. Doug Rams 82-57 to claim the fourth and final south berth in the Island competition.

Top-seeded Belmont Braves, with a bye, Victoria High Totems and Parkland Panthers are the south's other representatives in the Island tournament at UVic next weekend while Nanaimo Islanders, Courtenay Towhees, Cowichan Thunderbirds and Port Alberni Chieftans have clinched northern berths.

Charlie Wuester scored 25 points to pace the Bays' victory but the tide-turner for Oak Bay was the feat of outscoring Mt. Doug 24-8 in the third quarter. Rams had to go without first-string guard Keith Butler, sidelined with flu.

Vic High clipped Parkland 71-57 to earn the No. 2 south seeding.

Surprises were absent in the Island "A" championship at Dunsmuir as the host Demons overpowered St. Michael's University 100-63. Terry Kurve s, named the most-valuable performer, scored 40 points and Scott Kidd, an all-star choice, counted 35.

Parkland and St. Michael's also advance to the B.C. final at Hope, March 5-8.

In addition to Kurvers and Kidd, other "A" all-stars were James Hilgemann of North Island, Terry Berger-North of SMU and Carson Coppin of Dunsmuir.

Saskatchewan claims two titles

CALGARY — University of Saskatchewan teams took both the men's and women's titles Saturday at the Canada West University Athletic Conference volleyball championships.

Since Saskatchewan is the host of the national championships, the second-place CWUAA teams also will go to Saskatoon next month.

When Gloria Kovatch of Baltimore visited her father's grave four months after his death, she was stunned by the tombstone. It read: "Stanley J. Gladsky, 1895-1977, abused, robbed and starved by his beloved daughter." The headstone had been ordered "in jest," her brother Bernard Gladsky said. But Mrs. Kovatch brought a $500,000 suit against her brother, accusing him of erecting the stone to slander her and hold her up to public scorn. Gladsky said he once heard that his sister had sent their father to the hospital on a bus. Another time, he said a doctor told him his father was suffering from malnutrition and dehydration. Gladsky said he also felt someone was playing "hanky panky" with his father's $13,000 bank account before he died. After a three-day trial, a jury awarded the sister $2,000 in damages.

Carter

For three weeks after she lost their identification bracelets, Robin Everett of Colchester, Conn., couldn't tell which of her 3-month-old twins was Tina and which was Tanya. "I had to stop calling them by their first names because I was afraid I'd be calling them by the wrong name," Mrs. Everett says. In the meantime, the 23-year-old mother called the babies by nicknames. The crisis was solved when birth records containing the babies' footprints were compared with new prints.

Jimmy Carter has sent a short thank-you note to Sam Zuk. Zuk, the lone Democrat in the northern Maine community of Grand Falls Plantation, supported the U.S. president in a local caucus, which Carter won. Carter said he had seen a newspaper story reporting that Zuk was the only participant in that caucus. "It said you were a bit lonely up there, so I thought I would drop you a note to express my thanks for your friendship and support," Carter said in the letter.

It was a rare sight in an English courtroom — a judge without his wig. "If you wonder why I am half-dressed, I ask anyone who knows anything about a stolen judge's wig to tell the police," Judge Vivian Hurwitz told his court as he sat bare-headed behind the bench. The judge's traditional shoulder-length white wig was worth $300 and Hurwitz said it disappeared from his temporary dressing room in Leeds Town Hall.

Dear Abby:

I've composed this letter hundreds of times in my mind. I don't know where else to turn. My wife gained 10 to 15 pounds while pregnant with our son 11 years ago. She has never been able to lose that weight despite many dieting attempts.

I have tried every method I can think of to encourage her to lose weight — incentives, insults, praise, reward, punishments, and threats.

Otherwise she is a great wife and a wonderful mother. I do love her, and have no desire to see our marriage end. However, I cannot accept her as she is no matter how hard I try.

Depressed

Dear Depressed:

Yes. If you love your wife and are sincere when you say you have no desire to see your marriage end, you will see a therapist to find out why you can't accept her as she is. You could have a problem that is more serious than hers.

Dear Abby:

I have this problem. The man I have been living with thinks he is sterile but won't go to a doctor to find out for sure.

Well, about two weeks ago I found out I am pregnant! That really blew my boyfriend's mind. Now all I hear from him, 24 hours a day, is that the baby is not his! I know it is because no other man has been near me since I started living with him.

We get into terrible fights about this. Can you help me?

Saddled

Dear Saddled

If your boyfriend wants to duck the responsibility of fatherhood, one excuse is as good as another. A urologist can tell him whether he's sterile or not. If he refuses to go, let him blow what's left of his mind.

Dear Abby:

I have always felt that standing ovations should be reserved for exceptional performances. However, audiences in less sophisticated cities seldom see great performances, so they reward every play, concert and performance with a standing ovation.

I don't really feel like standing and joining the others in shouts of "bravo" following a merely good performance. I think a performance should be truly outstanding to rate a standing ovation.

My problem, Dear Abby, is that I always feel like a killjoy just sitting there instead of going along with the crowd.

Is it OK to remain seated at such times?

Fussy

Dear Fussy:

I can offer no better advice than that which Polonius gave to Laertes in Shakespeare's "Hamlet:" "This above all; To thine own self be true, and it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not be false to any man."

If it isn't pea-soup, then it's apple sauce

One of the more frequent questions my wife and I get asked is, "How can you stand each other's company day in and day out?" This query is prompted by the fact that I work from a home office, which in theory at least, means that I am constantly underfoot around the house. In practice, however, I retreat to my typewriter after breakfast, and stick to it until noon without interruption.

Perhaps in honesty, I should amend that last statement a trifle. I do wander out of my work-room occasionally on one minor errand or another.

To promote a cup of coffee, for instance.

Or to ask how to spell a word.

Or to borrow Win's sharp little paring knife to put a point on a pencil, or just to hang around companionably with an elbow on the refrigerator top while my wife get on with her lunch preparations.

The plain fact is that we stand each other very well, and as proof thereof, I point to Election Day.

As a supervisor of deputy returning officers, Win was going to be holding down a desk in our Maple Elementary School polling depot from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. This meant that I would be reduced strictly to my own devices for all of a long day.

On the evening before the event, my dear one undertook to give me some guidelines.

"Now," she began, "you don't have to worry about lunch. I've left you some pea soup, nice and thick, with ham in it. Pea soup, remember. It's in a carton in the refrigerator with the name on it. Don't get mixed up and open the other carton, because that's apple sauce . . ."

It occurred to me that she was speaking to me in the tone and with the manner one would assume when instructing a stupid little child.

"Pea soup," I said. "In a carton. In the refrigerator. Got it!" "Now, about money," she continued. "How much have you?"

In our family, we have found it best that one person should be in charge of monetary matters. That person is not me.

I investigated my pockets.

"I've got 63 cents," I reported. "That's plenty . . . What do I need money for?"

"Well, an emergency might come up," Win said. "You'd better get some out of the bank."

She brought a cheque book from her handbag and turned it over to me.

"You know how to use this, don't you?" she asked me kindly.

"Now look," I protested. "You don't have to treat me like a moron. Of course I know how!" I took the cheque- book from her and flipped it open. "I fill in how much I'm taking out. I sign my name on the front and back. I put this number . . . the account number on it . . ."

"That's not the account number," Win told me. "That's the bank's telephone number." She added indulgently, "You don't have to worry about the account number. It's stamped right on the cheque."

She gave me a troubled look. "I'm going to worry about you," she said. "Still, it's only for a day."

Next morning, I delivered her to the polling depot, then drove back home. Without Win's cheerful presence in it, our house seemed larger, and much emptier. The hours were longer, too, although I kept myself well-occupied by smoking the bugs out of a script.

Noon arrived. I drove up town, bought a hero sandwich and take-out coffee, and delivered them to Win at the school. I'd hoped we could enjoy a little visit while she took her lunch break, but the school gym was buzzing with voters.

"I won't have time to eat now," Win said. "Why don't you go home and have your pea soup?"

Disconsolate, I turned away, faced by the prospect of an afternoon of dismaying length and loneliness.

"Don't forget to vote!" Win called after me, before immersing herself once more in the demands of her job.

I voted. Then I traipsed home. Without much appetite, I took the carton from the refrigerator, dumped it into a saucepan, noting that it was kind of odd-looking pea-soup, and set it on to heat.

There are, I suppose, worse lunches than hot apple sauce. Still, it left a void, which I filled by wandering back up town, cashing a cheque with only minor difficulty, and grabbing a restaurant snack.

In the middle of the afternoon of that strung-out day, I mooched into the school gym again to see how things were going with Her Nibs the supervisor. This time, she managed to spare me a kind word.

"What you can do later," she said, "is get us some fried chicken for a treat. Put it in the oven to keep it warm . . . You know how to turn the oven on, don't you?"

Before she could advise, a bewildered voter blundered up to her desk, and I was reduced to my own resources once more.

Nine o'clock finally arrived. I picked Win up. We went home to munch The Colonel's finger-lickin' vittles,, and watch the tail-end of the election jazz on TV. The house had shrunk to its proper size again, and seemed a lot more cheerful.

'Kids books are for us all'

By
MARGARET BARNARD

HALIFAX (CP) — Mollie Hunter, a lively, auburn-haired Scot who has written 19 books in the last 20 years, deplores the literary snobbishness that values only serious works of fiction.

A prize-winning writer of children's books, Mrs. Hunter says she hates the tendency to place so-called serious writers at the top — and children's writers at the bottom — of the literary heap.

However, she believes there is a growing number of writers of children's books who can't be fitted into a category and who also subscribe to her theory that a good children's book should appeal to all ages.

"Writing is a craft," she says. "If you're good enough, you can raise it to a profession, and if you have enough of the creative spark, you can raise it to an art."

Mrs. Hunter, the first writer-in-residence at Dalhousie University's School of Library Services, is giving a series of seminars on writing during her stay.

She started writing poetry when she was young — "poetry is good training for any kind of writing," — and after a long apprenticeship, which included journalism, she published her first book in 1961.

An editor at Blackie and Son Ltd. put his job on the line to publish The Smartest Man in Ireland. It was a fantasy, for which the other editors judged there was no markat at the time.

Mollie Hunter . . . no time for literary snobs

Ironically, Mrs. Hunter's novel rated a half-page review in The Sunday Times; a biography that her publishers considered their showpiece received only a few lines of faint praise.

It was after she won the Carnegie Medal of the British Library Association in 1974 for her historical novel, The Stronghold, that Mrs. Hunter was asked to undertake a series of lecture tours to North America and Commonwealth countries.

She says her stay here is her first experience with university life. She left school at 14 to work, but in her leisure time studied on her own in the National Library of Scotland.

The National Library has asked for Mrs. Hunter's literary papers, a request that delights her because "I like the idea some other knowledge-hungry child might walk in and learn from those papers."

At home in the small Highland village of Milton, near Inverness, Mrs. Hunter writes daily for about six hours — "the maximum you can push your brain."

In addition to lecture tours, success has brought her an increasingly large correspondence with agents, publishers and fans, she says. But in the wee hours of the night she still writes poetry purely for her own pleasure.

Although lecture tours take her away from her writing, Mrs. Hunter says she feels she must share her knowledge of the craft with anyone who's interested in books but ignorant of the creative process.

B.C. doctors concerned for quality

By DR. BOB YOUNG

The media showed a sudden interest in the medical profession recently when they heard that the doctors were going to advertise. British Columbia Medical Association doctors were interviewed on hot-line radio, TV news, and by newspaper reporters.

It is true that the doctors of B.C. feel that they have a message for the public. Many of us are concerned that the availability and the quality of medical care is gradually slipping, not dangerously yet, but to a worrisome degree. We are concerned about shortages of nurses, increasing waits for elective surgical beds, and the fact that medical patients have to be sicker than they used to be before a place can be found for them in hospitals.

We are also concerned about medicare. Prepaid medical care has always worked satisfactorily in B.C., and the doctors, and I am sure the patients, would like it to continue to do so. It is, however, a somewhat artificial set-up. The premiums bear little relationship to the cost of providing the service, the doctors are involved in long negotiations each year, and the government is keeping a close watch on the costs of keeping their promise of "medical care for everyone".

British Columbia is the only province in which the medicare system has not broken down in some manner. In other provinces some physicians have felt that they had to bill the patient extra, leave the medical plan and bill their patients privately, or use other methods to maintain their income.

Doctors here have been trying to keep their incomes relatively stable by increasing their workload. Most feel that the slack has been taken up and that further efforts in this direction will be detrimental to patient care — taking time is important.

Patients affected by crowded hospitals, delayed admissions, and less prompt attention by depleted nursing staff frequently complain to their doctor. These problems are not of the doctor's making, but he or she is expected to (and usually does) go to bat for the patient.

Our public awareness campaign is designed to do just that, on a province-wide basis. We have identified the problem areas, but we have not the numbers to mount an effective campaign alone. We hope that our advertising with its "Help Us Help Yo" slogan will gain us the public support we need to ensure the continuation of quality health care in this province.

Dr. Young welcomes letters from column readers. Personal replies, however, are not possible and only letters of specific general interest will be referred to in the column. Send all correspondence to Info health, Dr. Bob Young, c/o Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, B. C., V8W 2N4.

Support flooding in for 'right-to-die' law

"Thank you for the courageous article by Leslie Holbrook (in your Fourth Quarter column) in The Province on 'right to die' legislation — or lack of it in Canada," writes Mrs. I. S., West Vancouver

"I do hope that the Canadian group for Concern For Dying, mentioned in that column, will soon be in operation and that we can be given a Canadian address. (I will provide this address when available. — LH).

"It is encouraging to see so many U.S. States enacting 'right to die' legislation and to learn that work concerning patients' rights is receiving attention. Here in Canada, I would like to see concerted action by all senior citizens' groups and organizations to bring about passage of 'right to die' laws in our country — permissive legislation that would in no way interfere with those who were not in agreement with such procedures.

"I believe that some years ago the Canadian Medical Association had a group working on this and related problems; religious teachings and beliefs posed a major difficulty in making progress. Death is for all of us and it is high time we faced up to the practical aspects of leaving this world in as dignified and pain-free a state as possible."

Mrs. I. S. adds: "I would go much further and vigorously support a voluntary euthanasia program." This is a much more complex and controversial subject and I suggest that we do not make it part of our current campaign.

Each mail is bringing many more letters supporting The Living Will (right to die) philosophy. Surprisingly strong support comes from Canada's west coast and from Ontario.

Kelowna Daily Courier reader Mrs. G. N. wants to do all she can to help (clipping my column for wider distribution) and says "respect for a dying person's right of free choice during terminal illness is long overdue in being made a law in Canada." Similar B.C. letters on my desk come from Burnaby, North Vancouver and Victoria.

Please do not write to me for copies of "The Living Will". Some of you have sent me cheques, money orders and cash (never send cash through the mail) and I just have to pass this along to the Concern For Dying organization.

So once again: If you want a single copy of The Living Will, free of charge, write: Concern For Dying, 250 West 57th Street, New York. N.Y., U.S.A. 10019. This is a non-profit organization so if you want more than one copy a small donation would be appreciated.

A Kitchener student asks (no reply postage) for "information concerning mercy killings and data regarding the practice of euthanasia, by Feb. 15." I cannot do your essay research for you.

"In your 'living will' column you say a related issue concerns patients' rights to be given facts about proposed treatments and to refuse such treatment if they wish," writes W. J., Montreal. "I consider this an even more important topic and wish you — with the help of your readers — would pursue it further."

O.K. Let's pursue it.

Send comments and questions (long, stamped, addressed envelope for reply) to The Victoria Times, c/o Box 1506, Guelph, Ont. N1H 6N9.

Adding wheat germ or bulgur's rich vitamin E to salads, batters and casseroles won't cost as much if you can buy a bag of wheat hearts (likely to be stacked in supermarkets near flour and cornmeal). Cook the wheat hearts until tender, drain and toast in 250-degree oven until completely dry. Grind in a blender; store in a jar with screw-on lid.

Up go hemlines again. When shortening last fall's longer skirts, don't plan on an extra-deep hem as insurance for future hemline drops. Deep hems will look bulky on last fall's fuller bias, pleated and gathered skirts. Also, if the fabric's stretchy, don't use cotton thread on the hem; cotton thread won't stretch.

Here's stained glass you can't see through

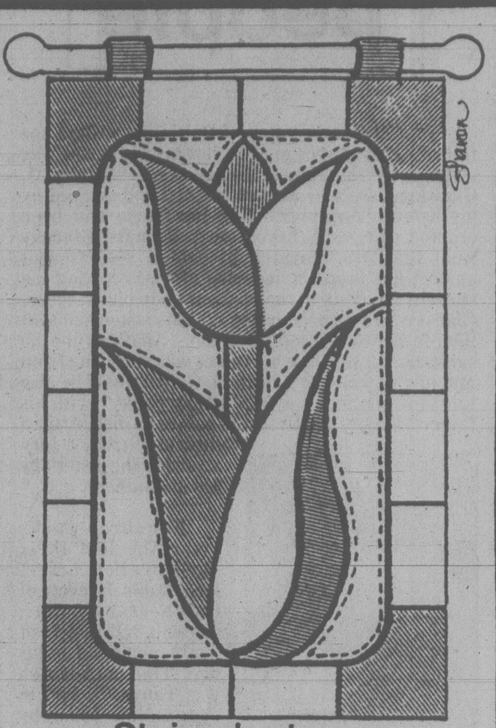
What are the advantages of a stained glass quilt? For one, you may delight in the same design and color scheme, but unlike a stained glass window, you can't cut yourself while making it, it takes fewer specialized tools, the availability of materials is greater, and it costs less money to buy. You can't see through it, but you can cuddle up with it and you can let an automatic washer clean it for you.

Stained Glass Quilting Technique, by Roberta Horton, a quilting teacher since 1972, is a delightfully easy-to-follow, step-by-step, soft-cover booklet. This craft is a favorite subject of the latest quilting guild meetings from coast to coast all over North America.

We all have images in our minds of what a quilt looks like. Perhaps it's a pastel applique from Mother's cedar chest, or some of the newer, more contemporary patchwork ones currently enjoying a revival. Quilts represent color, dimension, as well as warmth. During the past few years, artists have begun to try their hand in the textile arts, and quilting now can take almost any form from a frog applique to a three dimensional hanging made of a hundred different fabrics.

At a quilt show, one can see a great many familiar designs, as well as some new things — a new color scheme, or scale of design. At the Quilt Show in Minneapolis in January of 1979, my walk through the exhibits came to an abrupt halt when I saw Roberta Horton sitting in her booth with the cover quilt from her book hanging beside her. The colors really zapped me. I can't remember what I said to her but a great many positive adjectives were used. Roberta just smiled; she'd been hearing similar things all day. She showed me a few simple things (such as using bias tape where the 'lead' lines are), which allow non-glass-makers to create such beautiful effects. I immediately bought her book and vowed to rush home and try it.

Our illustration features one of the simplest designs you can start with. Its full-scale pattern is included in the book. Just as you hang stained glass pieces in a window so the light can come through them, you can do the same with a quilted hanging. If the backing fabric is light in color, the batting thin and white, the sun shining through from the back gives an interesting, delicate effect which is very pleasing. By picking the right colors, you can create a soft subtle effect for a bedroom, or a bright, cheery mood for the breakfast nook. Stained glass quilted pillows can bring a rich traditional look to the living room — consider ambers and rusts with an off-white background.



Stained glass Quilting Technique
Roberta Horton

Like other quilting projects, this stained glass technique will be a Pandora's Box. She's 'Miss everything'

Margery Hinds, now retired and living in Victoria, has answered to all those names in the years she has been in Canada.

In 1977, her experiences in circumpolar regions, which provided a significant contribution to man's understanding of those areas, were recognised when she was named an honorary Fellow of the Arctic Institute of North America.

Further recognition came at the beginning of this year when her name appeared in the list of those to whom Governor-General Schreyer will present Order of Canada awards in a ceremony at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, on April 16.

Hinds in Ungava with Supt. Larsen and friend, Ahua

Miss Hinds came to Canada for a first time in 1924 to teach for a year in a predominantly French district of Saskatchewan.

Following that brief visit her teaching career took her from England, where she was born and educated, to Australia, New Zealand and again to England.

Finally, in 1948, she came back to Canada and almost immediately became one of the first two women named by the federal government as welfare teachers.

Her initial appointment was to a school for Loucheux Indians at Fort McPherson, in the Mackenzie Delta region of the Northwest Territories.

The Indians there welcomed her and helped in every way they could, even to giving her their midwife as an interpreter — "a woman who had attended mission school, could speak reasonably good English and who became a trusted friend."

In the years Miss Hinds was at Fort McPherson, she taught the children, took charge of a government warehouse where food supplies and other staples were stored, and rationed out those supplies with special thought for the destitute, the old and the sick.

She did all the welfare work and acted in a sort of police capacity when Indians were in trouble, by handling the preliminaries, before the RCMP came in.

The federal government was just beginning to register traplines.

And, at the request of the game warden in that area, Margery Hinds took on the responsibility of organizing a meeting at the fort for Indian men and women who ran traplines and, at that meeting, to explain the meaning of the new rule.

Not only did the Indians accept the idea of registration, she remembers, they formed a trappers' organization with her help and named their first executive officers.

The game warden wan't even there.

Her next appointment was among Eskimos at a place called Port Harrison, in the Ungava region of Quebec.

There she opened the first school in a ward at the nursing station, moved with it a few months later to the Anglican mission and at the beginning of the fall term saw it settled in a new building with living quarters for the teacher.

Some Eskimo children in distant camps were unable to get into the school and it was part of Miss Hinds work to prepare lessons for them.

These were usually sent out and returned through male parents when they came in to trade.

Most of the welfare work at Port Harrison was already in the hands of the RCMP, headed by Supt. Henry Larsen.

This left Miss Hinds plenty of time, in the five years she was there, to teach, care for a wind charger that provided electricity for the school and her living quarters, visit and get to know the Eskimo people and to fulfil a personal desire to see how they made their snow houses (igloos) and how they lived in them.

At the beginning of 1955 she moved on to Cape Dorset, where again she set up a school.

Work was going on to move needy Eskimos from camps in the area to Resolute Bay. So Miss Hinds made a trip to those camps aboard an RCMP boat, to find out what equipment the Eskimos needed for the move and to help outfit them.

Welfare at Cape Dorset included problems she had never encountered before.

Up there it was common for Eskimo parents to arrange a daughter's marriage.

Just as common too, for many of those girls to try, in different ways, to get out of those bargains.

When that happened there was need for diplomatic counselling to persuade the parents to let the girl have her way.

It was also at Cape Dorset that Margery Hinds earned her title as dog officer by immunizing all the dogs with rabies vaccine.

"Over one Christmas holidays I innoculated more than 300 of those dogs," she told me.

At the end of three years there was another move, to Sugluk on Hudson Strait in Quebec, followed by still another to Arctic Bay at the top of Baffin Island, and then back to Wakeham Bay, again on Hudson Strait, where she stayed until retirement in 1962.

Part of her equipment at Wakeham was a radio transistor for emergencies and over that radio she worked, at times, with weather people out in the icefields to maintain up-to-the-minute information, especially for planes flying over that lonely land.

After retirement Miss Hinds moved back and forth between Canada and England for a time, trying to make up her mind where to make a permanent home.

Finally, in 1973, she came to Victoria, where she had relatives. She had also visited here in 1948, on her way north to Fort McPherson, and liked the moderate climate.

Over the years she has written six books, two published in Canada and four in England.

One is adult fiction, two are for juveniles and the other four are based on her experiences as a welfare teacher.

Articles she has written have appeared in The Beaver, Heritage Canada and other publications. Canadian Fiction Magazine has accepted her most recent story about Eskimo women for its next issue.

At present she is working on another book about the people she met in the circumpolar regions and their ways of life, especially at Cape Dorset and in northern Quebec.

Pond eyed as bird sanctuary

Saanich council is considering dedicating Kings Pond as a wildlife sanctuary, according to Ald. Sandy Noel.

The pond is at the north end of the municipally-owned Cedar Hill golf course.

In addition to the dedication, Noel says council is considering acquisition of flooded land north of Queensbury that forms part of the pond.

Biologist Dr. Roy Shepherd of 1287 Queensbury recently told council the number of birds visiting the pond was decreasing because of reduced water levels resulting from municipal staff changing water courses on the golf course.

If water levels continue to be reduced the pond will be in serious jeopardy, Shepherd said.

Noel says park administrator Frank Andrews has been instructed to experiment with the pond outlet weir to create a much larger waterfowl habitat.

$7M blaze guts 30 planes

CALGARY (CP) — At least 30 small aircraft were reduced to rubble Sunday when a fast-burning fire of unknown cause destroyed Hangar No. 3 at Calgary International Airport.

Fire officials estimated the damage to the aircraft at about $7 million and the 12,000-square-foot wooden hangar, built 40 years ago, at $300,000.

The fire was reported about 2 a.m. MST and destroyed the hangar and the aircraft in less than an hour. It was brought under control before it spread to other hangars. However, a number of vehicles parked nearby were damaged.

Captain Lawrence Ashley of the city fire department said the cause of the fire was being investigated by his department and federal transport officials.

Several aviation companies operated out of the hangar and estimates of the number of aircraft destroyed ranged from 30 to 40.

Eleven firefighting units were called to combat the fire, which could be seen in the night sky throughout the northeast section of the city.

The blaze was punctuated by a series of blasts as gas tanks in the aircraft exploded. No injuries were reported.

Firemen fought the blaze through the early-morning hours and were still mopping up Sunday afternoon. Fire officials said the situation could have been worse if it had been windy.

The airport's regular operations were not affected by the fire.

Calgary Aerodrome, an aviation-maintenance company, and Tri-Air Services, a rental firm, had facilities in the hangar, along with a flying school, but it wasn't clear how many aircraft they and other companies had lost.

Louise Fayram, manager of Tri-Air, said her company would be out of business, at least temporarily. She said Tri-Air lost two planes worth about $45,000. A third plane was outside the hangar and two others were rented out.

Darrin Hetterington, who worked in a neighboring hangar, said he went to the scene about 2:30 p.m.

"The hangar was just about gone when I got there," said Hetterington. He said the windows on on aircraft parked between the the two hangars melted.

Community plan airing in Oak Bay

Four informal public meetings to discuss a community plan for Oak Bay will be held Tuesday.

The meetings will be at the municipal hall, two parks and a school as a first step toward developing a community plan this year.

They will start at 7:30 p.m. in the hall and meeting rooms in Carnarvon Park, Windsor Park and Uplands Elementary School.

The municipality will present a rough draft of the plan and then divide residents into small discussion groups to study proposals and report back to the full meeting.

Municipal administrator James Craven estimated Friday the meetings will last about two hours.

Craven said the aim is to give people a chance to become involved in the growth of their municipality.

He said the municipality didn't call a formal public hearing because they tend to be dominated by a few people.

Bus passenger to retain sight

Laureen Wells, 21, of 7923 Pelter, was struck by flying glass Friday night when someone threw a rock at a bus window on Craigflower.

She said a doctor removed three pieces of glass in a delicate operation under local anesthetic. The doctor told her she was fortunate the glass had not migrated to the pupil where it could have caused loss of sight.

Other fine fragments remaining in the eye are expected to wash out of their own accord, and the woman was discharged from hospital with a protective patch over the eye.

She removed the patch today and was able to use the eye normally.

Police said they have had other reports of rocks being thrown at buses in the same area.

Nurses headed for contract showdown

The Registered Nurses Association of B.C. is expecting a good turnout among its 12,500 members Tuesday for a strike vote, the nurses' third such ballot since 1968.

"From what we can gather, the nurses seem to realize that this vote is their best chance to voice their dissatisfaction with inadequate conditions," RNABC spokesman Jerry Miller said today.

Voting by nurses at Victoria's major hospitals will take place at the Union Centre, 2750 Quadra. The results of the vote are expected to be announced Wednesday morning.

There has never been a strike by registered nurses in B.C. There was a strike vote by the nurses in 1968 and another in 1974.

The nurses have said from the outset of negotiations that this is the year they are going to get tough.

The latest offer from the Health Labor Relations Association, bargaining agency for 113 hospitals, is for a 21-per-cent increase over two years, retroactive to Jan. 1.

The RNABC has demanded an across-the-board 18-per-cent increase plus an economic catch-up that would vary with each nurse's experience and responsibility.

The nurses recently accused HLRA of double-dealing in its negotiations with hospital staff after reaching an agreement with the 20,000-member Hospital Employees Union for a 28-per-cent increase over a two-year period beginning Jan. 1, 1980.

RNABC charges that over the past 10 years, the historical wage relationship between the registered nurses and the practicals has been eroded.

In 1969, starting RNs earned 34 per cent more than starting practical nurses but that differential has now slipped to 15 per cent.

RNABC says its members start at $8 an hour while liquor store clerks begin at $8.53, Vancouver bus drivers at $10.41 and union carpenters at $12.38.

Miller said RNABC negotiators are also perturbed because HLRA won't discuss non-cost items until the nurses drop some of their economic demands.

For example, he said, the existing collective agreement says nurses may be required to work eight straight days. RNABC wants that reduced but claims HLRA won't talk about it.

Nor will the employers' association discuss the nurses' request for language protecting them from disciplinary action if they refuse to work overtime or another proposal that unpaid maternity leave be extended from four months to six months, he said.

Watchdog Richards Report #158. Congratulations to Hubert Beyer regarding his comments in last Thursday's Colonist Civic Scene about the loss of the James Bay community paper Beckley Farm News. It is Your City's Watchdog opinion that there is something rotten in Denmark where the Capital Region's planning committee decided to recommend a 21 per cent increase in its 1980 budget and the Capital Region Board's Transit planning committee decides along with board chairman James Campbell to take away from Senior citizens their $5 bus passes, who are on supplementary income. If this decision is passed by the full Capital Regional board next Wednesday afternoon (meeting open to public), the citizens of Victoria should demand that we get rid of a hell of a lot of Capital Region board members along with Board Chairman James Campbell. If Victoria taxpaying homeowners would like a copy of the latest information pamphlet about Victoria's City Hall and its committees. Please write to Your City's Watchdog, C. Joe Richards, Post Office Box 154. Seen-in-passing: Linda Holtum one of the most pleasant staff members of Victoria City Hall will be leaving on February 29th after 18½ years service for Vancouver. Linda will be greatly missed by Your City's Watchdog and other City Hall employees for her efficiency and courteous manners over the past years. Good Luck Linda. Fred Harrop seen tying lumber purchased from Oak Bay Building Supply. Postcript: Watch Cabel 10's Civic Affairs programme on February 29th regarding selling the Rainbow property in Victoria West, which was originally bought for park purposes.

HOW TO WRITE
CLASSIFIED ACTION
AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

It's time to fix up dormant fuchsias

Old plants of Fuchsia that have been kept indoors or in a greenhouse, dry, cool and dormant for the winter can now have a little work done on them. The amount depends on whether there is suitable light and airy space for them after new growth begins. If not, leave them with only a token amount of water and no pruning. Keep them cool.

With suitable space for them, first shorten all straggling shoots. Then go over each plant and cut out dead wood; then the weak wood. By this time the livelier buds near the base can be seen.

Scratch the surface soil just enough to allow air to penetrate and moisture to evaporate. Then stand pots in tepid water to absorb moisture slowly until the top soil is seen to be damp, about one hour. Remove from water, place in 10 to 15 deg.C temperature until the shoots near the base of the plants begin to grow. Then give them good overhead light until the shoots are about three cms long.

Fuchsias are voracious feeders, but not surprisingly so when you think of the mass of foliage and flowers in continuous production from early summer often until Thanksgiving.

If the old plants were new last year, then soil will be worn out; they will need repotting. Do it as new shoots reach the 3 cms.

If the plants are older, you will have better plants this year by taking the new young shoots as cuttings. Root them while still at the 3 cm stage by inserting them around the edge of a 7 cm pot of fine soil, peatmoss and sand, all well dampened. Put the pot into a plastic bag, close it with a tie, and keep it in a light, warm but not sunny place.

Cuttings should begin rooting in 12 to 18 days. Open bag every two days to check conditions. If much moisture collects, leave bag open or cuttings will develop a fatal mold.

If repotting the last year's fuchsias, choose pots about 1 cm larger in diameter than the old pots. Have them well washed and dry. Use soil mixture of garden soil, dampened peatmoss and sand; repot the old rootball into the new pot with 1 cm or so of new soil at the bottom. Fill in with enough fresh mix to come within 1 cm of the rim of the pot.

Water the plant from the top this time; let it drain for a while, then keep it in a warm light place to grow.

Fuchsia plants, whether they are new potted rooted cuttings or old plants being reconditioned, are constantly having each growth pinched or shortened by half its length. This induces side growths at each leaf axil, which are in turn shortened when each reaches the 3 cm stage.

About one month before flowers are wanted, cease the shortening of stems allowing flowers to develop on each branchlet. Fuchsias will open flowers on outdoor plants as days become warmer. The old flowers are in time cut off, and new ones takes their place.

Because of all this activity, fuchsias in containers on patios, balconies, as hanging baskets, or in garden beds (though not so much as single specimens in mixed beds) require almost daily attention to watering, which must be thorough, soaking the whole rootball. Frequent weak feeding of balanced fertilizer is also necessary to keep up production of new growth and flowers. More of this later in the season.

For now, get indoor wintered fuchsias started on their way to summer-long beauty.

Violent campaign ends, Rhodesians ready to vote

Times News Services

SALISBURY — This country's struggle of more than 15 years to resolve its racial problems and cast off British rule will be climaxed this week with elections at which an estimated 3 million black voters will choose the nation's first fully representative black-majority parliament.

Six weeks of campaigning by nine black political parties have been marked by widespread intimidation of rural voters, nightly interparty fighting in black townships and conflict between guerrilla and government troops.

This conflict has occurred despite the ceasefire that took effect Jan. 4. Under its terms, both sides were supposed to have disengaged, but in many areas this has not happened. There are about a dozen deaths each day from combat and terrorism.

The last day of formal campaigning for the elections was overshadowed by a powerful bomb blast Sunday that killed two people and demolished the plant of an influential Roman Catholic newspaper.

The explosion in Gwelo, 160 miles southeast of Salisbury, wrecked the offices and printing plant of the Mambo Press, publishers of the weekly Moto newspaper, which had only resumed publication last month after a five-year ban for printing allegations of torture by Rhodesian authorities.

But in what is seen as a breakthrough toward the merger of former foes into one national fighting force, 610 of Joshua Nkomo's guerrillas joined the regular army today.

The men were believed to be part of a tightly regulated and highly trained brigade formed while still in exile in Zambia.

The merger of the rival forces that fought the seven-year bush war has been described by politicians as crucial to avoiding strife after the voting.

But there was no indication of a similar merger with elements of Robert Mugabe's rival Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army, which the Rhodesians consider a far less disciplined and organized force.

Now resigned to black rule, the 230,000 whites remaining in the country are fearful that whichever black leader is the victor in elections and becomes prime minister, government instability will follow, and there may be a renewed civil war.

To allay white fears, the British-drafted constituton reserves 20 seats for whites in the 100-member Parliament for a period of seven years. Even so, the white bloc would have to arrange an informal coalition with a substantial number of the 80 black members in Parliament to retain a meaningful voice in lawmaking.

The worst fate that could befall whites, they contend, would be for Mugabe's party to win a parliamentary majority and make him prime minister. Mugabe is a socialist and his manifesto, although couched in moderate language, calls for redistribution of farm lands owned by whites and the sharing of other white wealth with the have-not blacks. He appears to be the front-runner in the campaign.

Mugabe said today that he will invite rival Nkomo to join him in a coalition government after black members of Rhodesia's new Parliament are elected this week, no matter how many seats his party wins.

Gun-toters lose beef at border

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Americans who refused to give up their firearms to Canadian customs officials Sunday ended up losing the guns and their car after a chase through Surrey, south of Vancouver.

Police said driver of a vehicle bearing California licence plates was asked by customs officials check the weapons and pick them up when he returned.

Instead, the man drove past the customs officer into Canada. After a brief chase, the driver and his female companion were stopped by RCMP and escorted back to the border.

Sergeant-led revolt captures Surinam

PARAMARIBO, Surinam (AP) — Army sergeants aggrieved over pay and working conditions today took control of Surinam, a former Dutch colony in South America, after an eight-hour battle in which at least six persons were killed, witnesses said.

The rebel soldiers, identifying themselves as the National Military Council, issued a communique saying the democratic principles of the country will be respected. The whereabouts of Prime Minister Henck Arron and other officials of his politically moderate government could not be learned immediately.

One witness said automatic-weapons and bazooka fire broke out at about 3 a.m. at the headquarters of the 800-man Surinam army. He said a patrol boat, apparently under rebel control, shelled police headquarters from the Surinam River, demolishing part of an upper storey. The headquarters burned to the ground and neighboring buildings caught fire, he said.

Outgoing communications abroad were cut as the rebels occupied police stations and disarmed the civil police, the witness said.

Reports reaching the Hague, Netherlands, said the six persons reported killed included two soldiers and two policemen. Up to 300 soldiers were involved in the uprising, the reports said.

By 11 a. m., the fighting subsided and soldiers began patrolling the streets to halt looting that had broken out during the coup, witnesses said. Because of the fighting, stores and schools had not opened this morning in Paramaribo, the Dutch-style, canal-crossed capital of 150,000 people.

Anglican archbishop confirmed in London

LONDON (AP) — The world's 65 million Anglicans, including 1.5 million in Canada, got a new spiritual leader today.

At a ceremony in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, a royal commission of eight bishops of the Protestant Church of England confirmed Bishop Robert Runcie as Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate and Metropolitan of All England.

Runcie, a 58-year-old Second World War army hero, succeeded Archbishop Donald Coggan, who has reached the compulsory retirement age of 70, and became the 102nd man to hold the post since the Benedictine missionary Augustine was sent to England by Pope Gregory I in 596 AD. Augustine became archbishop in 597.

The new archbishop will be formally installed in an elaborate ceremony on March 25 in Canterbury Cathedral, where he was unanimously elected by the church hierarchy on Feb. 7.

Ecclesiastical historians say Runcie is the first archbishop to have fought for his country since the Middle Ages. As a Second World War officer in the Scots Guards, he led a tank unit across the Rhine and into the Nazi heartland in 1945, winning the Military Cross for bravery.

Runcie went into the ministry after the war. He served as bishop of St. Albans, 33 kilometres northwest of London, since 1970 and wrote a history of the relationship between his cathedral and the city.

Runcie has described himself as a traditionalist, an opponent of ordaining women priests, and has said he does not intend to speak in platitudes.

His election was confirmed by the Queen, latest in a list of British monarchs who have been the temporal heads of the Anglican Church since King Henry VIII broke with Roman Catholic Church in Rome in the 16th century.

Polls peg Hampshire vote

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — The last minute polls are in, but the last minute controversies remain on the eve of the New Hampshire presidential primary.

The final polls, by the Boston Globe and the New Hampshire Sunday News, showed President Carter well ahead of Sen. Edward Kennedy and Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. in the Democratic primary. Both showed Carter about 55 percent; Kennedy at or just over 30 percent; Brown between 8 and 12 percent.

But they disagreed on the likely outcome of the hotly contested Republican primary. The Globe showed former U.N. Ambassador George Bush and former Gov. Ronald Reagan of California in a virtual tie, 35 percent to 34 percent with Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee and Rep. John Anderson well behind.

The Sunday News, the sabbath sister of the Manchester Union Leader, said its sampling had Reagan over Bush 40 percent to 35 percent, with Baker and Anderson trailing.

U.S. gives $2B arms to Egypt

The Associated Press

The authoritative newspaper Al Ahram says President Carter has decided to give Egypt $2 billion worth of arms, including sophisticated F-16 jetfighters.

The newspaper says Assistant Defence Secretary David McGiffert brought word of the arms package to Cairo.

The arms package, which is subject to congressional approval, will be delivered by mid-1981, the newspaper says.

"I came to Egypt to relay President Carter's decision to supply Egypt with its military needs in the light of the proposed program for advance weapons," Al Ahram quotes McGiffert as saying. It says he gave no details of the weapons involved..

Gen. Kamal Hassan Aly, Egypt's defence minister, said recently that talks were under way with the United States aimed at refurbishing Egypt's armed forces. He estimated the cost at $4 billion to $6 billion during five years.

No pessimism: Carter

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Carter, insisted Sunday that "progress is being made" in the effort to free the American hostages in Tehran and cautioned against going from "extreme optimism to extreme pessimism every time some action is taken or some speech is made in Iran."

In his first public reaction to Ayatollah Khomeini's suprise statement Saturday that the fate of the hostages will not be decided until April, Carter said that "there's no way of telling an exact schedule" for their release.

While the president refused to go into details, he and other administration officials mounted a strenuous effort Sunday night to reassure the American public that negotiations with Iran are still under way and that they are hopeful of a successful outcome.

Carter's guarded talk of "very sensitive and very difficult efforts" taking place behind the scenes came as a United Nations commission met in Iran with President Abdol Hassan Bani-Sadr and Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, one day after arriving in Tehran. The commisson reportedly was told it would receive broad cooperation in its inquiry into Iranian grievances against deposed shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

News agencies reported from Tehran that Iranian officials continued to stress that the commission's mission was not to win release of the estimated 50 American hostages held by Islamic militants who seized the U.S. embassy last Nov.4.

Bani-Sadr, after a meeting of the ruling Revolutionary Council, told reporters in Tehran Sunday night that the U.N. commission would see the hostages but a spokesman for the militant students disagreed.

"The work of the U.N. commission has nothing to do with the hostages, so there will be no plan for the commission to visit the embassy," the spokesman said, according to Reuter.

These contradictory statements coming out of Iran were cited by administration officials in warning that the U.S. public should not leap to hard-and-fast conclusions over every unexpected development emanating from Iran's confused and tumultuous internal situation.

Carter, in an obvious effort to stem impatient new calls here for action, stopped to talk with reporters as he returned to the White House from a weekend at Camp David.

Residents flee rising Calif. lake

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has moved in to help hundreds of residents who have fled homes along rising Lake Elsinore — edging up an inch an hour from the steady weekend flow of run-off water.

The rest of storm-soaked Southern California was drying out through the weekend with sunshine and temperatures nudging 80 degrees, but residents of Lake Elsinore were still facing rising flood waters.

A police dispatcher estimated 350 residents had been forced from their homes by the rising lake. City Manager Ira Pace estimated about 70 homes and eight businesses had been flooded.

The Army Corps of Engineers prepared Sunday to dredge an abandoned diversion channel which would relieve the flow and send the water through the Temescal Canyon Wash, then into the Santa Ana River control channel.

Clearing the old channel is expected to take at least three days and cost the city of Lake Elsinore, located 60 miles southeast of Los Angeles, from $3 million to $4 million and the Army Corps of Engineers more than $1 million.

Receding flood waters in other Southern California areas allowed government repair crews, residents and volunteers to scoop up mud and search collapsed homes and debris basins for possible victims of the 10-day storm seige.

Flash floods, slides and torrential rains during the drenching storm series beginning Feb. 13 took at least 36 lives, destroyed more than 110 homes and damaged 1,350 others.

Kabul hit by rioting, looting

The Afghan capital of Kabul, already disrupted by four days of anti-Soviet protests, was hit today by a wave of rioting, looting, and gunfire, Radio Kabul said in a rare admission of trouble in the mile-high city.

Until today, Radio Kabul has gone to great lengths to deny any major problem in the Soviet-occupied capital and today's brief broadcast was an indication that anti-Russian demonstrations had reached such a peak that some explanation was needed.

The broadcast, monitored by All-India Radio in Simla, India, said rioting, looting and shooting in the streets of Kabul was the work of insurgents backed by the United States, China and Pakistan.

Earlier, eyewitnesses said shouts of "Allah Akhbar!" (God is great!) punctated by gunfire pierced the night air Sunday.

They said tracer bullets could be seen streaking over rooftops where the city's Moslem residents shouted their cry in defiance of a martial law curfew. It was not known if the bullets were fired by rebels, Afghan troops or their Soviet supporters.

The accounts reported in New Delhi said gunfire could be heard throughout the city late into the night Sunday. A 15-minute fire fight was reported in Jadi-Moiwand district at about 10 p.m. local time.

Diplomatic reports today said Afghan civil servants have joined the anti-Soviet protests, further indicating that the Soviet-installed regime of Babrak Karmal had failed to gain any hold and was falling apart.

Trucks outfitted with loudspeakers moved throughout the capital but failed to quell what the witnesses described as a "continuous and impressive" display in the five-day protest that has left hundreds dead and thousands injured.

The Soviet press admitted for the first time Sunday that there was widespread unrest in Afghanistan and charged it was the work of "foreign spies" working "in accordance with the CIA plans."

The Cuban Prensa Latina news agency said, "more than 220 weapons made in the United States, China, Britain and Pakistan" were captured in Kabul since a general strike began.

Another anti-Soviet demonstration was reported continuing in the eastern provincial capital of Jalalabad.

Well-informed sources in New Delhi said Saturday and Sunday — normally business days in the Moslem nation — were declared holidays by the Soviet-backed Afghan government to conceal the fact that civil servants failed to report to work.

Separatists in west face rocky road

By PAUL MINVIELLE

Two meetings of Westerners dissatisfied with Confederation were held on the weekend, but it's looks as if the road to Western independence is going to be rocky.

At the annual meeting of the Western National Association in Vancouver Sunday, only a motion calling for a ban on smoking during the meeting passed without a fight.

It was later learned, however, that some who voted for the smoking ban thought they were voting on something else.

Victoria lawyer Doug Christie, the founder and one-time chairman of the Committee for Western Independence (which later became the Committee for Western Unity, and still later the Western National Association), dueled with the executive throughout the meeting.

When the election of officers was held, Christie found himself back as chairman of the group he founded five years ago.

Christie, who has espoused Western independence for several years, also had to be pleased with the somewhat impromptu Victoria meeting of the Western Independence Party which attracted 60 people Saturday night to the Prince Albert Room in The Empress Hotel.

There was little opposition at the Victoria meeting to suggestions of seeking outright independence.

The only advance notice of the Victoria meeting was a couple of radio announcements Saturday afternoon.

Lewis Stephens, a Victoria welder who attended the Empress meeting, said he was convinced enough to pay $5 for membership in the party.

The question is, what party?

Christie booked the Victoria meeting for the Western Independence Party, but in Vancouver, the 50 people who showed up were looking for the Western National Association meeting.

Reports indicate that at least half of those attending left when hard-line advocates of Western Canadian independence, led by Christie, began arguing with the group's executive.

Those pushing for independence later won out over the remaining moderates and a motion calling for a Western separatist party passed by a narrow margin.

Rentalsman getting tough . . . rent-gougers to court

He was commenting on the officers' raid last week on the Vancouver offices of two companies looking for evidence of violations of the Residential Tenancy Act.

The raid, against Aquilini Construction and Zen Construction, was the first ever authorized by his office, Patterson said.

He said the two companies are under investigation for alleged abuses of rent control legislation.

Tony Dibley, senior rentalsman officer in charge of the investigation, said he seized some confidential documents from company offices.

Personnel involved were co-operative, he said, but as he had search warrants issued by a county court judge, "they really had no option."

Patterson said that since 1977, his office has received numerous complaints from tenants in three buildings involved with the two companies.

"In the past few months, the complaints have been escalating," Patterson said. "We looked at these buildings and found a number of irregularities in the rents. We were finding that rolling back rents was not a sufficient deterrent.

"We have seized all the records and now can investigate whether tenants have complained or not."

Company spokesmen had no comment on the investigation.

The raid is the latest action by Patterson, who is developing a reputation for being tough on landlords who break rent control laws.

Patterson said he wants to ensure landlords do not take advantage of the tight rental situation.

"Our rent control policy is extremely liberal. And with my business background I can understand the need to make a reasonable return.

"But I've been getting mad at people taking advantage of the rental market. Enough is enough. We're going to be more aggressive. When we find people gouging, we'll prosecute."

California shaken by quake

SPRING CREST, Calif. (AP) — A strong earthquake rolled through a wide area of Southern California early today, sparking a fire and causing desert rock slides.

No injuries were reported, but residents from Mexico to Los Angeles and from the desert to the sea — an area with a population of about 10 million — were jolted awake by the quake. There were several aftershocks.

An unoccupied duplex in the desert community of Rancho Mirage was damaged when the quake broke a natural gas line to a water heater and the pilot light set off a blaze, authorities said.

There were no reports of additional damage to several desert levees that broke and caused flooding in last week's string of Pacific storms. Dams in the San Diego area, which overflowed during the same storms last week, also appeared stable.

The quake, which registered 5.1 on the Richter scale, struck at 2:47 a.m. PST and was centred 204 kilometres northeast of San Diego and 24 kilometres southeast of Lake Hemet near Spring Crest.

Greek oil spill threat to coast

ATHENS (UPI) — Oil spilling from a tanker that exploded and sank in historic Bay of Navarino today threatened a scenic stretch of Greek beaches.

But officials planned to avert an ecological disaster by pumping the bulk of the 100,000 tons of crude oil in the hold of the tanker Irene's Serenade, which exploded Saturday while at anchor in the bay and sank in 100 feet of water Sunday.

Undersea pressure threatened to burst the ship's tanks and release millions of gallons into the Ionian Sea, maritime authorities said.

So far, protective booms set up the Coast Guard and Dutch Salvage experts have prevented a 2-mile-long, 500-yard-wide slick from reaching shore. Special boats that sweep oil from the sea were headed to the bay, on Greece's western Peloponnesian coast, some 200 miles southwest of Athens.

Two of the vessel's crew were lost in the explosion and another 28 crewmen and a woman passenger were rescued.

Fully loaded with nearly 30 million gallons of crude oil, the tanker was set afire apparently by sparks from the anchor as it was being lowered outside the port of Pylos.

The stricken tanker lies among the wreckage of the vanquished Turkish fleet, sunk by the combined fleets of Britain, France and Russia at the battle of Navarino.

Walking on air an inflated idea

Los Angeles Times

The term "walking on air" has a whole new meaning today. George Cole, a professional inventor who is credited with the single handle faucet and plastic plumbing pipe, has developed an inflatable shoe designed for people who spend a lot of time on their feet.

The ENERGair shoe features pads on the bottom of the sole that can be inflated with a standard air pump and adjusted to the individual's needs and comfort — a fashion model might require only one pound of pressure, for example, while Orson Welles might need four pounds or more.

The custom-fitted shoes, which sell for $50 to $100 a pair, not only ease foot discomfort but provide a novel excuse for being late to work: "I had a flat shoe."

Kramer, Jazz head Oscar sweeps

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kramer vs. Kramer, a touching story of a child custody battle, and All That Jazz, a musical about a director's brush with death, captured top honors in the 52nd Academy Award nominations today with nine apiece.

Apocalypse Now, a searing account of the Vietnam War, followed with eight nominations.

The modestly-budgeted Breaking Away was nominated in five categories. The China Syndrome, Norma Rae and The Rose followed with four each.

All That Jazz was the surprise of the nominations. The Bob Fosse film had aroused controversy, with some calling it a masterwork and others considering it self-indulgent. Roy Scheider was nominated as best actor for a role that closely paralleled Fosse's life.

Others named for best actor: Dustin Hoffman, Kramer vs. Kramer; Jack Lemmon, The China Syndrome; Al Pacino, And Justice For All; Peter Sellers, Being There.

Two-time winner Jane Fonda was nominated for the fifth time as best actress for The China Syndrome. Also named: Jill Clayburgh, Starting Over; Sally Field, Norma Rae; Marsha Mason, Chapter Two; Bette Midler, The Rose.

Another two-time winner, Melvyn Douglas, was among the nominees for supporting actor; he was named for Being There. Others for supporting actor: Robert Duvall, Apocalypse Now; Fredric Forrest, The Rose; Justin Henry, Kramer vs. Kramer; Mickey Rooney, The Black Stallion.

Meryl Streep was considered by many critics to have played a starring role in Kramer vs. Kramer but she was nominated for best supporting actress. Others in the category: Jane Alexander, Kramer vs. Kramer; Barbara Barrie, Breaking Away; Candice Bergen, Starting Over; Mariel Hemingway, Manhattan.

The nominees for best picture were All That Jazz, Apocalypse Now, Breaking Away, Kramer vs. Kramer and Norma Rae.

The preliminary skirmishing, which saw studios spend hundreds of thousands for trade paper advertisements and other attention-getters, now is over. Competition will be focused on five nominees in each category.

Who does the voting? Nominations are made by each category — actors vote for acting achievements, writers for writing, etc.
